Zen on the go Aditi Pant,2019-08-27 It takes time and a lot of seasons for a great tree to realize its true dimensions From that vantage point it tells us stories stories not only of joy but also those that contain pain As the seasons change the tree changes as well it rejoices with spring tempers with summer wizens with autumn and quietens with the winter This process of watching the tree as it accepts embodies and reflects every season and learns from it is the very alchemy of Zen All of us have grown up listening to stories from this tree of life The esoteric becomes real in the telling and retelling of stories It is these stories that teach us that happiness is not found in seeking out extraordinary experiences but in examining our life closely in reflecting on our experiences and in becoming more cognizant of our surroundings just like the tree This is a book of little stories and anecdotal experiences which pull us out of our hectic schedules and help us discover a moment of Zen in our own lives

Michael J. Ryan,1985 In a Panamanian pond male tungara frogs Physalaemus pustulosus gather in choruses giving their advertisement call to the females that move among them If a female chooses to make physical contact with a male he will clasp her and eventually fertilize her eggs But in vying for the females the males whose calls are most attractive may also attract the interest of another creature the fringe lipped bat a frog eater In The Tungara Frog the most detailed and informative single study available of frogs and their reproductive behavior Michael J Ryan demonstrates the interplay of sexual and natural selection Using techniques from ethology behavioral ecology sensory physiology physiological ecology and theoretical population genetics in his research Ryan shows that large males with low frequency calls mate most successfully

He examines in detail a number of explanations for the females preferences and he considers possible evolutionary forces leading to the males success Though certain vocalizations allow males to obtain mates and thus should be favored by sexual selection this study highlights two important costs of such sexual displays the frogs expend considerable energy in their mating calls and they advertise their whereabouts to predators Ryan considers in detail how predators especially the fringed lipped bat Trachops cirrhosus affect the evolution of the t ngara frog s calls FCS Life Orientation L4 ,2009
