Jacob Abbott, 1878 Malleville Jacob Abbott, 1881 Dervall Hampton, A Story of the Sea, Volume 1 and Vol 2

Complete James Grant, 2021-07-31 Excerpt: There was an air of great refinement in both husband and wife, an air that contrasted strongly and strangely with their plain attire and circumscribed dwelling. Greville Hampton's face was dark in complexion, aquiline in feature, a very handsome face, one quite warranted to claim the unmistakable admiration his wife had for it, and yet it was not a pleasing one. His brow was indicative of intellect and courage, his lip shaded by a black moustache was indicative of a resolute will and firm purpose, and his dark hazel eyes, if stern and even gloomy in their normal expression, could soften with a depth of affection when they dwelt on the face of Mary, on the child that was playing at their feet, or at the approach of a friend, and showed that he had a warm heart under the crust in which he was wont to hide it. Early disappointment, great monetary losses, and a wrong more real than fancied, the loss of a title and patrimony, had much to do with the latter, and hence came the bitter expression that at times stole over his well-formed mouth, and the shadow that clouded a really handsome face. Rickey, Mallory and Company's Catalogue Raisonné John Whitney (Jr.), 1860

The Growth of Literature is a key work for all scholars and students of comparative literature and will also interest those involved with other fields of literary studies as well as sociology, anthropology, and related disciplines. The three volumes, hailed as classics when they first appeared between 1932 and 1940, were last reprinted in 1968. Now available for the first time in paperback, they remain the definitive study of their subject. The work contains an examination of comparative literatures in various countries and at various times, with a view to demonstrating what literature, oral and written, consists of at different stages of its growth and what, if any, general principles can be applied to its development under diverse conditions. In the first volume, Professor and Mrs. Chadwick establish the categories of literature which are used throughout as a means of classification and discuss the heroic age in Europe, focusing on Classical, Anglo-Saxon, and Celtic cultures. In the second volume, they deal with Russian oral literature, Yugoslav oral poetry, early Indian literature, and early Hebrew literature. Volume III examines the oral literature of the Tatars of Polynesia and of Africa concluding with a general survey which makes use of the categories developed in the first volume History of Romulus Jacob Abbott,1852 History of King Richard the Second of England Jacob Abbott,1858 History of Hernando Cortez John Stevens Cabot Abbott,1884 Histories of Cyrus the Great and Alexander the Great Jacob Abbott,1880 The Writings of Origen.
