

a stray animal, but the land was deserted of all creatures. At night the warriors lay down exhausted, hoping that the next day their luck would be better. Standing Bear's horse seemed to sense the misery of the braves, and the helplessness of his own want and hunger. When they lay asleep at night, he acted as scout. At the slightest noise he would arouse them with a snort, and they would awake, fearing a chance enemy or hoping for an animal at which to shoot. The horse was their most dependable friend, and as they grew weaker they watched him closer for warnings.

At last, however, the warriors became so weak they could no longer make a day's journey. Without food they would never reach their village; so they begged Standing Bear to kill his horse that they might continue the journey. Standing Bear looked at his suffering friends with pity. He was weak and hungry himself, yet when he looked at his faithful horse, his heart was touched. It was hard to see his friends starving, but when he again looked at his pony standing dejectedly
