Actual Minds, Possible Worlds Jerome S. Bruner, 2009-06-30 In this characteristically graceful and provocative book Jerome Bruner one of the principal architects of the cognitive revolution sets forth nothing less than a new agenda for the study of mind According to Professor Bruner cognitive science has set its sights too narrowly on the logical systematic aspects of mental life those thought processes we use to solve puzzles test hypotheses and advance explanations There is obviously another side to the mind a side devoted to the irrepressibly human acts of imagination that allow us to make experience meaningful This is the side of the mind that leads to good stories gripping drama primitive myths and rituals and plausible historical accounts Bruner calls it the narrative mode and his book makes important advances in the effort to unravel its nature Drawing on recent work in literary theory linguistics and symbolic anthropology as well as cognitive and developmental psychology Professor Bruner examines the mental acts that enter into the imaginative creation of possible worlds and he shows how the activity of imaginary world making undergirds human science literature and philosophy as well as everyday thinking and even our sense of self Over twenty years ago Jerome Bruner first sketched his ideas about the mind's other side in his justly admired book On Knowing Essays for the Left Hand Actual Minds Possible Worlds can be read as a sequel to this earlier work but it is a sequel that goes well beyond its predecessor by providing rich examples of just how the mind's narrative mode can be successfully studied The collective force of these examples points the way toward a more humane and subtle approach to the investigation of how the mind works

Technology-mediated Narrative Environments for Learning, 2006 Narrative has always been used as a means for learning both in school and in informal contexts Technology has further increased the possibilities of exploiting its potential for education Is there an added value though in using technology to realize narrative learning experiences And what are the advantages of embedding narrative in technology based learning environments Addressing such questions is the aim and focus of this volume The book includes 12 chapters analysing different ways of building and using technology mediated narrative learning environments or highlighting aspects that can help the reader gain a deeper understanding of their educational potential The focus is not limited to cognition but includes also motivation and emotion which are important components of learning The book originates from the work of the Special Interest Group Narrative and Learning Environments of the Kaleidoscope Network of Excellence It is addressed to teachers educators parents cultural operators researchers and software designers and aims to help all of them increase their ability to exploit appreciate and enjoy their work with technology mediated narrative learning environments

Narration, Identity, and Historical Consciousness

Jürgen Straub, 2006-01-01 A generally acknowledged characteristic of modern life namely the temporalization of experience inextricable from our intensified experience of contingency and difference has until now remained largely outside psychology's purview. Wherever questions about the development structure and function of the concept of time have been posed for example by Piaget and other founders of genetic structuralism they have been concerned predominantly with concepts of physical chronometrical time and related concepts e.g. velocity. All the contributions to the present volume attempt to close this gap. A larger number are especially interested in the narration of stories. Overviews of the relevant literature as well as empirical case studies appear alongside theoretical and methodological reflections. Most contributions refer to specifically historical phenomena and meaning constructions. Some touch on the subjects of biographical memory and biographical constructions of reality. Of all the various affinities between the contributions collected here the most important is their consistent attention to issues of the constitution and representation of temporal experience. The Psychology of Human

Thought Robert J. Sternberg, Edward E. Smith, 1988-02-26 Conference Interpreting - A Trainer's Guide Robin Setton, Andrew Dawrant, 2016-06-29 This companion volume to Conference Interpreting A Complete Course provides additional recommendations and theoretical and practical discussion for instructors, course designers and administrators. Chapters mirroring the Complete Course offer supplementary exercises, tips on materials selection, classroom practice, feedback and class morale, realistic case studies from professional practice and a detailed rationale for each stage supported by critical reviews of the literature. Dedicated chapters address the role of theory and research in interpreter training with outline syllabi for further qualification in interpreting studies at MA or PhD level, the current state of testing and professional certification with proposals for an overhaul, the institutional and administrative challenges of running a high quality training course and designs and opportunities for further and teacher training, closing with a brief speculative look at future prospects for the profession. Cultural Conceptualisations and Language Farzad Sharifian, 2011 Presents a multidisciplinary theoretical model of cultural conceptualisations and language which draws on analytical tools and theoretical advancements in several disciplines including cognitive linguistics, cognitive anthropology, anthropological linguistics, distributed cognition, complexity science and cognitive psychology. A Cognitive Theory of Cultural Meaning Claudia Strauss, Naomi Quinn, 1997 Culture and meaning are central to anthropology but anthropologists do not agree on what they are. Claudia Strauss and Naomi Quinn propose a new theory of cultural meaning, one that gives priority to the way people's experiences are internalized. Drawing on connectionist or neural network models as well as other psychological theories they argue that cultural meanings are not fixed or limited to static groups but neither are they constantly revised and contested. Their approach is illustrated by original research on understandings of marriage and ideas of success in the United States. Play and Literacy in Early Childhood Kathleen A. Roskos, 2017-07-05 This volume brings together studies, research syntheses and critical commentaries that examine play-literacy relationships from cognitive, ecological and cultural perspectives. The cognitive view focuses on mental processes that appear to link play and literacy activities the ecological stance examines opportunities to engage in literacy related play in specific environments and the social cultural position stresses the interface between the literacy and play cultures of home community and the school Examining play from these diverse perspectives provides a multidimensional view that deepens understanding and opens up new avenues for research and educational practice Each set of chapters is followed by a critical review by a distinguished play scholar These commentaries focus is to hold research on play and literacy up to scrutiny in terms of scientific significance methodology and utility for practice A Foreword by Margaret Meek situates these studies in the context of current trends in literacy learning and instruction Earlier studies on the role of play in early literacy acquisition provided considerable information about the types of reading and writing activities that children engage in during play and how this literacy play is affected by variables such as props peers and adults However they did not deal extensively as this book does with the functional significance of play in the literacy development of individual children This volume pushes the study of play and literacy into new areas It is indispensable reading for researchers and graduate students in the fields of early childhood education and early literacy development

Nature, Metaphor, Culture Judit Baranyiné Kóczy, 2017-11-03 This book analyses the emotional message of Hungarian folksongs from a Cultural Linguistic perspective employing a wide range of empirical devices It combines theoretical notions with analytical devices and has a multidisciplinary essence it relies on the latest Cultural Linguistic findings employing spatial semantics cognitive linguistics cognitive psychology and ethnography The book addresses key questions including How is nature conceptualized by a folk cultural group How are emotions and other mental states expressed via nature imagery with respect to metaphors and construal schemas The author argues that folksongs reflect the Hungarian peasant communities specific treatment of emotions captured in an underlying cultural schema reservedness This schema is grounded in principals of morality and tradition and governs the various levels of representation The main topics discussed are related to two core issues cultural metaphors and cultural schemas of construal in folksongs It provides a detailed example based on over 1000 folksongs of how a cultural group's cognition can be analyzed and better understood through a representative corpus based linguistic approach The research is also pioneering in constructing a comprehensive analysis framework adapted to folk poetry and offers an example of how cultural conceptualizations can be investigated in various discourse types Last but not least the book offers insights into the work of Hungarian linguists and folklorists concerning cultural conceptualizations which have largely been unavailable in English

The Domain of Images James Elkins, 1999 In the domain of visual images those of fine art form a tiny minority This original and brilliant book calls upon art historians to look beyond their traditional subjects painting drawing photography and printmaking to the vast array of nonart images including those from science technology commerce medicine music and archaeology Such images James Elkins asserts can be as rich and expressive as any canonical painting Using scores of illustrations as examples he proposes a radically new way of thinking about visual analysis one that relies on an object's own internal sense of organization Elkins begins by demonstrating the arbitrariness of current criteria used by art historians for selecting images for study He urges scholars to adopt instead the far broader criteria of the young field of image studies After analyzing the philosophic underpinnings of this interdisciplinary field he surveys the entire range of images from calligraphy to mathematical graphs and abstract painting Throughout Elkins blends philosophic analysis with historical detail to produce a startling new sense of such basic terms as pictures writing and notation

Reading for Storyness Susan Lohafer, 2020-03-03 The short story has been a staple of American literature since the nineteenth century taught in virtually every high school and consistently popular among adult readers But what makes a short story unique In Reading for Storyness Susan Lohafer former president of the Society for the Study of the Short Story argues that there is much more than length separating short stories from novels and other works of fiction With its close readings of stories by Kate Chopin Julio Cortázar Katherine Mansfield and others this book challenges assumptions about the short story and effectively redefines the genre in a fresh and original way In her analysis Lohafer combines traditional literary theory with a more unconventional mode of research monitoring the reactions of readers as they progress through a story to establish a new poetics of the genre Singling out the phenomenon of imminent closure as the genre's defining trait she then proceeds to identify preclosure points or places where a given story could end in order to access hidden layers of the reading experience She expertly harnesses this theory of preclosure to explore interactions between pedagogy and theory formalism and cultural studies fiction and nonfiction Returning to the roots of storyness Lohafer illuminates the intricacies of classic short stories and experimental forms of surreal postmodern and minimalist fiction She also discusses the impact of social constructions such as gender on the identification of preclosure points by individual readers Reading for Storyness combines cognitive science with literary theory to present a compelling argument for the uniqueness of the short story

Analyzing Narrative Anna De Fina, Alexandra Georgakopoulou, 2011-11-24 The socially minded linguistic study of storytelling in everyday life has been rapidly expanding This book provides a critical engagement with this dynamic field of narrative studies addressing long standing questions such as definitions of narrative and views of narrative structure but also more recent preoccupations such as narrative discourse and identities narrative language power and ideologies It also offers an overview of a wide range of methodologies analytical modes and perspectives on narrative from conversation analysis to critical discourse analysis to linguistic anthropology and ethnography of communication The discussion engages with studies of narrative in multiple situational and cultural settings from informal intimate to institutional It also demonstrates how recent trends in narrative analysis such as small stories research positioning analysis and sociocultural orientations have contributed to a new paradigm that approaches narratives not simply as texts but rather as complex communicative practices intimately linked with the production of social life
