Walker, Boyce N. Raymond Wood, 1998 The Prehistory of Missouri is a fascinating examination of the objects that were made used and discarded or lost by Missouri's prehistoric inhabitants over a period of more than eleven thousand years Missouri's numerous vegetation zones and its diverse topography encompassed extreme variations forcing prehistoric populations to seek a wide range of adaptations to the natural environment As a result Missouri's archaeological record is highly complex and it has not been fully understood despite the vast amount of fieldwork that has been conducted within the state's borders In this groundbreaking account Michael J O'Brien and W Raymond Wood explore the array of artifacts that have been found in Missouri pinpointing minute variations in form They have documented the ranges in age and distribution of the individual forms explaining why certain forms persisted while others quickly disappeared Organized by chronological periods such as Archaic Woodland and Mississippian the book provides a comprehensive survey of what is currently known about Missouri's prehistoric peoples often revealing how they made their living in an ever changing world The authors have applied rigorous standards of archaeological inquiry Their main objective demonstrating that the archaeological record of Missouri can be explained in scientific terms is accomplished With more than 235 line drawings and photographs including 23 color photos The Prehistory of Missouri will appeal to anyone interested in archaeology particularly in the artifacts and the dates of their manufacture as well as those interested in the dichotomy between interpretation and explanation Intended for the amateur as well as the professional archaeologist this book is sure to be the new standard reference on Missouri's prehistory fulfilling current needs that extend beyond those met by Carl Chapman's earlier classic The Archaeology of Missouri Principles of Geoarchaeology Michael R. Waters, 2022-02-22 Geoarchaeological studies can significantly enhance interpretations of human prehistory by allowing archaeologists to decipher from sediments and soils the effects of earth processes on the evidence of human activity While a number of previous books have provided broad geographic and temporal treatments of geoarchaeology this new volume presents a single author's view intended for North American archaeologists Waters deals with those aspects of geoarchaeology stratigraphy site formation processes and landscape reconstruction most fundamental to archaeology and he focuses on the late Quaternary of North America permitting in depth discussions of the concepts directly applicable to that research Assuming no prior geologic knowledge on the part of the reader Waters provides a background in fundamental geological processes and the basic tools of geoarchaeology He then proceeds to relate specific physical processes microenvironments deposits and landforms associated with riverine desert lake glacial cave coastal and other environments to archaeological site formation location and context This practical volume illustrates the contributions of geoarchaeological investigations and demonstrates the need to make such studies an integral part of archaeological research

The text is enhanced by more than a hundred line drawings and photographs

Clovis Mammoth Butchery L. Adrien Hannus, 2018-04-09

Thirteen millennia ago in a small creek valley in western South Dakota two mammoths perished. The mammoths an adult and a juvenile likely a cow and calf pair died at the edge of an ancient pond. The Lange Ferguson site is the earliest dated archaeological site in South Dakota and one of the few North American sites that provides evidence of a Clovis period mammoth butchering event. In addition to the preserved remains of the two mammoths the site yielded diagnostic Clovis weaponry three Clovis projectile points recovered in context and stratigraphically associated with the mammoth bonebed and flaked bone tools. The site offers a rare snapshot in time detailing early Paleoindian interactions with now extinct megafauna nearly 13 000 years ago.

In Clovis Mammoth Butchery The Lange Ferguson Site and Associated Bone Tool Technology L Adrien Hannus provides a comprehensive look at one of the few New World Clovis era sites with in place buried deposits exhibiting evidence for an expedient bone tool technology. Multidisciplinary investigations include paleoenvironmental and geochronological reconstructions pollen and phytoliths geology and geomorphology diatoms and ostracodes mollusks and vertebrate paleontology as well as taphonomic evaluations and a microwear analysis of the chipped stone tools. Clovis Mammoth Butchery offers readers a rare glimpse into a singular moment in prehistory that captures human interaction with extinct animals during a rapidly changing world for which there is no modern comparison. This book shares great insight into hunting and procurement strategies used by big game hunters during the Late Pleistocene and Early Holocene.

Archaeology on the Great Plains W. Raymond Wood, 1998-07-29

Stretching from the Gulf of Mexico to central Canada North America's great interior grasslands were home to nomadic hunters and semisedentary farmers for almost 11 500 years.

before the arrival of Euro American settlers Pan continental trade between these hunters and horticulturists helped make the lifeways of Plains Indians among the richest and most colorful of Native Americans This volume is the first attempt to synthesize current knowledge on the cultural history of the Great Plains since Wedel's Prehistoric Man on the Great Plains became the standard reference on the subject almost forty years ago Fourteen authors have undertaken the task of examining archaeological phenomena through time and by region to present a systematic overview of the region's human history Focusing on habitat and cultural diversity and on the changing archaeological record they reconstruct how people responded to the varying environment climate and biota of the grasslands to acquire the resources they needed to survive The contributors have analyzed archaeological artifacts and other evidence to present a systematic overview of human history in each of the five key Plains regions Southern Central Middle Missouri Northeastern and Northwestern They review the Paleo Indian Archaic Woodland and Plains Village peoples and tell how their cultural traditions have continued from ancient to modern times Each essay covers technology diet settlement and adaptive patterns to give readers an understanding of the differences and similarities among groups The story of Plains peoples is brought into historical focus by showing the impacts of Euro American contact notably acquisition of the horse and exposure to new diseases Featuring 85 maps and illustrations Archaeology on the Great Plains is an exceptional introduction to the field for students and an indispensable reference for specialists It enhances our understanding of how the Plains shaped the adaptive strategies of peoples through time and fosters a greater appreciation for their cultures

Dwight L. Drager, Arthur K. Ireland, 1986 The Evolution of Human Hunting Matthew H. Nitecki, Doris V. Nitecki, 2013-11-11 The successful early adaptations of man involve a complex interplay of biological and cultural factors There is a rapidly growing number of paleontologists and paleoanthropologists who are concerned with hominid foraging and the evolution of hunting New techniques of paleoanthropology and taphonomy and new information on human remains are added to the traditional approaches to the study of past human hunting and other foraging behavior There is also a resurgence of interest in the early peopling of the New World The present book is the result of the Ninth Annual Spring Systematics 10 1986 in the Symposium on the Evolution of Human Hunting held on May Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago We are grateful to the NSF grant no BNS 8519960 for partial financial support in arranging the symposium In preparation of this volume we have received assistance from many people particularly the reviewers of individual chapters it is impossible to name them all We must however single out Drs Richard G Klein and Glen H Cole for their encouragement at various stages of preparation of the symposium and this volume and for being a help to the anthropological knowledge Zbigniew Jastrzebski assisted with the figures and Paul K Johnson diligently typed the camera ready copy and patiently coordinated the endless book making chores

Sveti Pavao Shipwreck Carlo Beltrame, Sauro Gelichi, Igor Miholjek, 2014-07-31 Between 2007 and 2012 the Department for Underwater Archaeology of the Croatian Conservation Institute from Zagreb and the Department of Humanistic Studies of the Ca Foscari University of Venice collaborated in the recording underwater excavation and analysis of the unusually well preserved wreck of a 16th century Venetian merchantman in the Sveti Pavao shallow off the southern shore of the island of Mljet Croatia The shipwreck preserved many personal possessions of the crew as well as a number of bronze artillery pieces and the remains of a cargo of luxury and richly decorated ceramic material from Iznik and other oriental workshops Although the excavation is not complete this volume presents the results of the project so far The methodological and technical aspects of the underwater investigation of the site mainly by photogrammetry are described the historical and archaeological context of navigation in the late Medieval period in the eastern Mediterranean discussed and the recovered artefacts described and catalogued in detail together with the remains of the ship and its equipment that because of depth and of problems of conservation have been left in situ The conservation and restoration of the finds are described in an appendix
