Lever's Histopathology of the Skin is a classic comprehensive work that has been used by generations of dermatopathologists pathologists and dermatologists to further their knowledge in their current practices and in the training of their students The pathophysiologic organization is based on Walter Lever's original scheme with appropriate modifications over the years and is more efficient than the pattern method since related entities are discussed in juxtaposition This edition contains over 1 400 full color illustrations including photomicrographs and clinical photographs of diseases not covered in previous editions The chapter on algorithmic pattern recognition has been expanded and extensively cross referenced to the chapters on diseases to aid readers in generating differential diagnoses for unknown cases A companion Website will offer the fully searchable text and an image bank

Pharmacology of the Skin I, 2012-12-06 The recent interest in the pharmacology of the skin and the treatment of its diseases has come about for two reasons The first is a realisation that many aspects of pharmacology can be studied as easily in human skin where they may be more relevant to human physiology and diseases as in animal models Examples of this are the action of various vasoactive agents and the isolation of mediators of inflammation after UV irradiation and antigen induced dermatitis The second reason is the fortuitous realisation that a pharmacological approach to the treatment of skin disease need not always await the full elucidation of etiology and mechanism For example whilst the argument continued unresolved as to whether the pilo sebaceous infection which constitutes acne was due to a blocked duct or to a simple increase in sebum production 13 cis retinoic acid was found quite by chance totally to ablate the disease again whilst cyclosporin fresh from its triumphs in organ transplantation has been found able to suppress the rash of psoriasis it has resuscitated the debate on etiology We are therefore entering a new era in which the pharmacology and clinical pharmacology of skin are being studied as a fascinating new way of exploring questions of human physiology and pharmacology as well as an important step in the development and study of new drugs use of which will improve disease control and at the same time help to define pathological mechanisms
