Pilot study on the experiences of hurricane shelter evacuees Laura DiGrande, Lisa Carley-Baxter, Christine Bevc, Suzanne Triplett, Craig William, Lewis-Owen, Jessica Williams, 2019-09-11 Community members who evacuate to shelters may represent the most socially and economically vulnerable group within a hurricane s affected geographic area Disaster research has established associations between socioeconomic conditions and adverse effects but data are overwhelmingly collected retrospectively on large populations and lack further explication As Hurricane Florence approached North Carolina in September 2018 RTI International developed a pilot survey for American Red Cross evacuation shelter clients Two instruments an interviewer led paper questionnaire and a short message service SMS text questionnaire were tested A total of 200 evacuees completed the paper survey but only 34 participated in the SMS text portion of the study Data confirmed that the sample represented very marginalized coastline residents 60 percent were unemployed 70 percent had no family or friends to stay with during evacuation 65 percent could not afford to evacuate to another location 36 percent needed medicine medical care and 11 percent were homeless Although 19 percent of participants had a history of evacuating for prior hurricanes disasters and 14 percent had previously utilized shelters we observed few associations between previous experiences and current evacuation resources behaviors or opinions about safety This study demonstrates that for vulnerable populations exposed to storms of increasing intensity and frequency traditional survey research methods are best employed to learn about their experiences and needs The Complete Idiot's Guide to Disaster Preparedness Dr. Maurice A.
