Tax Planning For Farm And Land Diversification Second Edition:

Tax Planning for Farm and Land Jon Butler, 2004-01-01 Tax Planning for Farm and Land Diversification offers practical help and guidance to ensure that farmers and landowners take full advantage of tax planning opportunities. It is a pragmatic and strategic guide written in an accessible and user friendly style. This edition provides valuable guidance on the tax consequences of pursuing alternative types of farming and land use rather than traditional methods. There are many tax issues relating to the diversification of farmland and this book is a comprehensive guide to the tax benefits and pitfalls applicable to farmers.

Tax Planning for Farm and Land Diversification Julie Butler, 2016-01-25 This well respected title examines traditional farming and diversification in the light of tax and planning procedures. It explores the current trend to diversify away from pure food production and the turn toward alternative land use for the purpose of profitable enterprise. It also covers forms of tax planning that are necessary to cope with the upheavals facing all those in farming communities. This new edition picks up on a number of important legislative developments and new cases since the last edition was published in 2011 including the following: Loss claim restriction to 25% Farmhouse update Golding and Hanson The demise of the corporate partner More impact of Permitted Development Rights and developing buildings ATED and the farmhouse the implications of the lowering of the ATED threshold on farmhouses held in companies Repairs impact of Pratt Hopegear and Cairnsmill cases which all address the question of whether expenditure on the farm is revenue or capital expenditure CAP Reform update movement from the Single Payment Scheme to the Basic Payment Scheme and the Active Farmer criteria Guidance on the new permitted development rights rules that came into force in April 2014 allowing the conversion of farm buildings into up to three residential properties without going through the full planning process Options for farmers following moves by HMRC to deny APR in situations where farmers have not been actively involved in farming in the two years before death Guidance on Associated Disposal rules for partnership advantages and achieving entrepreneurs relief Importance of BPR analysis of the Zetland vs HMRC case Capital allowances and the farm buildings maximising the claim AIA Annual Investment Allowance Claim at 500k Guidance on the need for robust partnership agreements with reference to Ham vs Ham.

Tolley's Tax Planning for Farm and Land Diversification Julie Butler, 2004 Tax Planning for Farm and Land Diversification has been written to offer practical help and guidance to ensure that tax planning opportunities are used to their maximum helping farmers and landowners through this often complicated process. It is a pragmatic and strategic guide written in an accessible and user friendly style. With the 2005 deadline for applying international accounting standards approaching the question of valuing agricultural stocks is becoming more important. This new edition provides valuable guidance on the tax consequences of pursuing alternative types of farming and land use rather than traditional methods. There are many tax issues relating to the diversification of farmland and this book is a guide to the tax benefits and pitfalls the farmer is exposed to. It is a must read for all those involved in this complex industry looking at its various different areas together with a consideration of tax planning and protection against tax pitfalls. Butler's Equine Tax Planning understands the vast range of equestrian industries from stud farms, competition yards and liverys to individuals at the top of their game in polo, eventing, dressage and racing. All these have very different tax treatments and here these are explained and examined in light of recent tax legislation and decisions resulting from a number of tax tribunals over the last few years. One important issue for all new equine businesses is losses. The equestrian industry generally has high infrastructure costs and early year losses are thus not unusual. Understanding how these tax losses can be maximised against other income is therefore key. Other important areas that require tax planning are often less obvious. For example, a lot of equestrian enterprises stem from farm diversification and the alternative use of land which has a complex set of tax rules in itself. There are also tax implications associated to the development opportunities of an equestrian unit which now may arise with the Government decision to ensure there are more houses in the UK. This book captures the passion and enthusiasm for the industry and the advantages and opportunities that accompany it whilst embracing all the tax efficiencies and highlighting tax problems.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR After qualifying as a Chartered Accountant in 1980, Julie founded Butler Co in 1986. She is a farm and equine tax specialist and together with her team provides consultancy services to other accountants, land agents and solicitors on farming, diversification, bloodstock and all areas of the equine world. She is the author of Tax Planning for Farm and Land Diversification and Equine Tax Planning as well as co-author of Stanley Taxation of Farmers and Landowners. In 2017 she became the editor of Farm Tax Brief and her articles are published regularly in the national accountancy and tax press. She lectures to a large variety of audiences through various organisations and to the rural community directly.
