Ekkehard Wolff,2023-11-23 Due to a long history of contact the Chadic languages are the internally most diverse of the Afroasiatic language families especially in terms of their sound systems In this ground breaking study the author draws on his extensive research experience to unpack the morpho phonological principles that underpin the languages diverse prosody effects arguing that massive variation results from diachronic processes called prosodification of segmental units The study compares data from 66 of the 79 known languages from the Central branch of the Chadic language family most of them unwritten and under researched It traces language changes for 228 lexical items that can be reconstructed from the proto language s basic vocabulary unearthing typological features that link Central Chadic to its deep Afroasiatic heritage It is accompanied by a set of online appendixes providing the full analytical apparatus of all lexical reconstructions with explicit identification of each of the diachronic sound changes and processes involved
