Psychological Studies in the Teaching, Learning and Assessment of Mathematics Yiming Cao, Zsolt Lavicza, Shuhua An, Lianchun Dong, 2024-05-31 There is no doubt that the onset of a new decade has brought high expectations of academic progress for scholars especially for researchers in mathematics education The International Group for the Psychology of Mathematics Education was born in 1976 which focused on the international exchange of knowledge in the psychology of mathematics education the promotion of interdisciplinary research with psychologists mathematicians and mathematics teachers and the development of the psychological aspects of teaching and learning mathematics and its implications

Second Handbook of Research on Mathematics Teaching and Learning Frank K. Lester, 2007-02-01 The audience remains much the same as for the 1992 Handbook namely mathematics education researchers and other scholars conducting work in mathematics education This group includes college and university faculty graduate students investigators in research and development centers and staff members at federal state and local agencies that conduct and use research within the discipline of mathematics The intent of the authors of this volume is to provide useful perspectives as well as pertinent information for conducting investigations that are informed by previous work The Handbook should also be a useful textbook for graduate research seminars In addition to the audience mentioned above the present Handbook contains chapters that should be relevant to four other groups teacher educators curriculum developers state and national policy makers and test developers and others involved with assessment Taken as a whole the chapters reflects the mathematics education research community s willingness to accept the challenge of helping the public understand what mathematics education research is all about and what the relevance of their research findings might be for those outside their immediate community achievement targets are sure to be at the center of the upcoming debate Contributors include Thomas Dee Laura Desimone George Farkas Barbara Foorman Brian Jacob Robert M Hauser Paul Hill Tom Loveless Meredith Phillips Andrew C Porter and Thomas Smith

Dynamic Assessment of Young Children David Tzuriel, 2012-12-06 Dynamic interactive assessment has been a long time coming It has been almost a century since Alfred Binet suggested that assessment of the processes of learning should constitute a priority in the mental testing movement and over 60 years since Andre Rey made the same suggestion An important model that supports many contemporary approaches to flexible or process assessment was offered by Vygotsky in the 1920s The ground breaking work by Reuven Feuerstein and his Swiss colleagues on process assessment of North African Jewish children was done in the early 1950s In the intervening years almost every serious psychometrist has at one time or another called for emphasis on assessment of the of learning rather than an exclusive emphasis on assessment of the processes products of prior opportunities to learn One has to wonder why we have had to wait so long for formalization and instrumentation of the methods for doing just that Of course we psychologists like to do what we do well and we have learned to do static normative assessment especially of intelligence very well indeed Unfortunately it is also true that dynamic interactive assessment has not attracted or fueled the volume of high quality research that is still going to be necessary if it is to survive as a widely used supplement to static normative testing This volume incorporating a strong research base goes a long way toward remediation of that situation
