Compressed air has many applications in engineering, such as spray painting, conveying powdered materials, etc. Hence, pressure boosting system and so on.

Air compressor works in atmospheric air and compresses it to required pressure using single or multiple compression. It is equipped in a pressure vessel such as industrial vessels. Most of the air compressors are reciprocating type with piston and cylinder arrangement. The industrial/compression requires minimum work input. Hence, ideal compression is polytropic. When high pressure is required, multistage compression with inter-coolers is used to get industrial compression as fast as possible.
