History of the French Revolution, Vol. 3 of 4 (Classic Reprint) Heinrich Von Sybel, 2015-07-04 Excerpt from History of the French Revolution Vol 3 of 4 Very different was the activity and success of their opponents the Democrats The plan of subjecting all the property and civilisation of France to their will which they had first promulgated after the 10th of August and again during the month of December was now to be brought into full operation by the new ascendancy which this party had acquired through the trial and execution of the king As the middle class in Paris kept entirely aloof from politics the sectional assemblies were only attended by a handful of proletarians who commenced their sittings late in the evening after work hours and faithfully represented that sovereignty of the people whose dicta according To the doctrine of the Jacobins were to be a binding law on the Convention Care was taken that there should never be any want of orators or exciting themes of declamation discussions were carried on till late in the night on the worthlessness of the ministry and the Gironde on the intrigues of the Emigres and the traitors at home and above all on the starvation of the poor the hard heartedness of the rich and the means of exterminating usurers and monopolists As many articles were made dear by the stagnation of trade and the mass of assignats there was reason enough for complaint and the exasperation was increased by the thought that goods existed in plenty and that they only had a higher price put on them by the merchants or were altogether withdrawn from the market in consequence of the uncertain value of the paper money And thus a fresh outcry was raised against their grinding selfishness and it was again demanded that the State should decree low and fixed prices and punish those who refused to sell their goods The word was passed from section to section wherever any opposition showed itself it was immediately suppressed by a number of resolute Federes and on the 12th of February the first of those storm petitions which were so terribly to characterize the year 1793 was presented to the Convention Commissioners of the sections and the Federes warmly supported by Marat About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
