The G Stanley Hall Lecture Series:

1986 Hall Lecturers Vivian Parker Makosky,1987 The G. Stanley Hall Lecture Series Alan G. Kraut,1982 This volume in the G Stanley Hall Lecture Series is the second in an ongoing effort aimed at meeting the needs of introductory psychology teachers The chapters presented here provide a selective and recent literature review of five specialties that are likely to be covered in an introductory course the selection within specialties highlights aspects the authors feel are most appropriate for introductory students PsycINFO Database Record c 2004 APA all rights reserved 1987 Hall Lectures Laurel

Furumoto,1989 The G. Stanley Hall Lecture Series Vivian Parker Makosky,2009 Recognizing the importance of the introductory psychology course and the difficulties in teaching the course led to the G Stanley Hall Lecture Series established in 1980 for the purpose of bringing the best thinking in the field of psychology to the attention of the undergraduate instructor The G Stanley Hall Lectures are a series of 5 lectures presented at the American Psychological Association APA annual convention and subsequently published as a single volume Each year s series consists of 4 lectures on content areas and a 5th lecture that presents a special topic of current interest and relevance to teachers of introductory psychology The topic areas covered in this volume are research methodology personality learning and conditioning environmental psychology and research on teaching in psychology PsycINFO Database Record c 2004 APA all rights reserved

Cohen,1989 In 1987 the scope of the series was broadened to include undergraduate teaching in general rather than the earlier more limited emphasis on the introductory course The series now included lectures that would update the materials in three of the topics usually included in undergraduate curricula one on a relatively nontraditional topic and one on some pedagogical aspect of undergraduate psychology teaching The 1988 Lectures followed this pattern The three basic topics included one on emotions by Carroll Izard one on the history of psychology by Laurel Furumoto and one on clinical psychology by Martin Seligman The less traditional topic covered in this set of lectures was sport psychology presented by Michael Mahoney The series concluded with a lecture by Richard Mayer on the teaching of critical thinking PsycINFO Database Record c 2004 APA all rights reserved G. Stanley Hall Lecture Series ,1981 The five papers that comprise this initial volume in the G Stanley Hall Lecture Series differ other than in topic of coverage While they all focus on the most recent literature on introductory courses in psychology one emphasizes a few trends in considerable detail while another mentions many current investigations The papers also differ widely in terms of their recommendations for classroom activities and demonstrations some of the papers give these activities substantial emphasis yet other papers provide little material of this kind Still these papers have much in common and it is this commonality that is at the heart of the lecture series These papers are more than mere reviews of the past five years literature they are integrative accounts of that literature Each attempts to place its content area in the context of a survey introductory course recognizing the limitations of coverage and understanding inherent in such a course PsycINFO Database Record c 2004 APA all rights reserved G.
