The Editing of American Literature, 1890-1930 Donald Pizer,2012-07-30 Since the 1960s Donald Pizer has been writing about late 19th century American literature with an emphasis on the major fiction of Theodore Dreiser and Stephen Crane. Most academics whose interests lie primarily in the preparation of scholarly editions are attracted to the paradoxical mix of adherence to a rigorous process and an opportunity for speculative thinking that is distinctive to this branch of literary studies. And they often find appealing the notion that the end product of their labors is a book that unlike much criticism is sure to be used by others and to have a long lifespan. However, Pizer came to textual discussion from a different direction than most editors of scholarly editions who seldom wrote criticism about the authors and works they were engaged in editing. Consequently, Pizer was drawn into the text wars of scholarly editions and during the last three decades of the 20th century he produced a number of essays tackling this sometimes contentious subject. The Editing of American Literature 1890-1930 collects Donald Pizer's essays and reviews that examine the issues associated with providing authoritative scholarly editions of major turn-of-the-century American authors. Divided into four sections: general essays on editing, essays and reviews on the editing of Theodore Dreiser, essays and reviews on the editing of Stephen Crane, and essays on the interplay of textual theory and critical interpretation in works by Crane and John Dos Passos, the volume expresses a distinctive position in the text wars that dominated the editing scene of the 1970-2000 period. This collection of essays will be of interest to textual editors of any persuasion as well as literary critics and scholars with a special interest in late 19th and early 20th century American literature.

Plausible Crime Stories Orna Alyagon Darr, 2018-11-29. Plausible Crime Stories is not only the first in-depth study of the history of sex offences in Mandatory Palestine but it also pioneers an approach to the historical study of criminal law and proof that focuses on plausibility. Doctrinal rules of evidence only partially explain which crime stories make sense while others fail to convince. Since plausibility is predicated on commonly held systems of belief, it not only provides a key to the meanings individuals and social players ascribe to the law but also yields insight into communal perceptions of the legal system, self-identity, the essence of normality and deviance, and notions of gender, morality, nationality, ethnicity, age, religion, and other cultural institutions. Using archival materials including documents relating to 147 criminal court cases, this socio-legal study of plausibility opens a window onto a broad societal view of past beliefs, dispositions, mentalities, tensions, emotions, boundaries, and hierarchies.

Stories of Life Edward John Mastronardi, 2016-01-08. Stories of Life in four parts are a variety of tales of men, women, and youth experiences in a broad array of situations, some ending in a surprising manner, a few tragically illustrating the challenges faced in their lives. For the most part, they are based on real-life situations many observed, some experienced, a few imaginatively created. The author believes, based on the favourable reviews of the stories from the book read thus far by a variety of individuals, virtually every reader will discover tales they can relate to based on their own life experience, finding others of more than just of a passing interest. The first part emphasises trials and triumphs in their working lives. The second part describes a number of sometimes shocking experiences occurring in their lives in youth and adulthood. The third and fourth parts are self-explanatory. Seduction, a timeless, astonishingly effective instrument

Occidentalism and the Egyptian Novel Lorenzo Casini, 2024-12-26 This book examines Occidentalism or the set of cultural literary and political uses of the West in the works of canonical 20th and 21st century Egyptian novelists Beginning with the writings of Muhammad Husayn Haykal Lorenzo Casini here traces the way that imaginaries and representations of the West became bound up with the notions of modernity and national identity with which Egyptian novelists grappled from the works of Tawfiq al Hakim to those of Taha Husayn The book also explores the trope of the European woman as an embodiment of the free modern seductive West as an essential facet of Occidentalism in this formative period The second part of the book examines the ways in which later novelists from Latifa al Zayyat and Yusuf Idris to Radwa Ashur and Ahdaf Soueif subverted dominant Occidentalism themes as a way of re examining concepts of personal political and national identity The author argues that these later novelists reacted to the changing political circumstances in Egypt from Nasser s rule and the slide to authoritarianism to the 2011 Revolution to envisage different kinds of Egyptian political community with a more complicated and less binary relationship with the imagined West

Father-Daughter Incest in Twentieth-Century American Literature Christine Grogan, 2016-10-03 The first major study to challenge the narrow definition of post traumatic stress disorder PTSD by rereading six American literary texts this book argues for the importance of literature in representing not just circumscribed singular traumatic events as Cathy Caruth argued in the late nineties but for giving voice to chronic and cumulative or complex traumatic experiences This interdisciplinary study traces the development of father daughter incest narratives published in the last hundred years from male authored fiction to female authored memoir bringing new readings to Fitzgerald's Tender Is the Night, Ellison's Invisible Man and the Dylan Farrow-Woody Allen case. This study builds on the work of those ushering in a second wave of trauma theory which has argued that the difficulty of speaking about a traumatic experience is not necessarily caused by neurobiological changes that prevent victims from recalling details. Rather it's from social and political repercussions. In other words they argue that many who experience trauma aren't unable to deliver accounts; they fear the results. There is a significant gender component to trauma whose implications along with those of race and class have largely gone unexamined in the first wave of trauma theory. Exploring two additional questions about articulating trauma, this book asks what happens when the voice of trauma is crying out from what Toni Morrison has called the most delicate, most vulnerable member of society, a female child, and second, what happens when the trauma is not just a time-limited event but chronic and cumulative experiences. Some traumatic experiences, namely father-daughter incest, are culturally reduced to the untellable, and yet accounts of paternal incest are readily available in American literature. This book is written in part as a response to the psychological community which failed to include complex PTSD in the latest edition of the DSM. DSM-5 denying victims, many of whom are father-daughter incest survivors, the validation and recognition they deserve, and leaving many misdiagnosed and thereby mistreated.

Human Rights on the Edge Heather Smith-Cannoy, Tricia Redeker Hepner, 2023-06-06. This book grapples with the challenges inherent in an uncertain period for global human rights and explores the future of international human rights law and practice. Many Western scholars are increasingly pessimistic about the future of international human rights law. However, the contributions to this volume demonstrate that far from collapsing in the face of duress, the concept of human rights has endured despite contractions and the spectre of co-optation and manipulation by the powerful. In addition, law is a malleable tool that is deployed in novel ways to promote human rights. The book illustrates that the power of human rights lies not in their essentialized transcendence of time, culture, and context but in their enduring promise that a more just world can emerge from sustained and creative struggle through, against, and at the margins of states, law, and institutions. The key questions to emerge are not whether human rights law and practice will survive but rather what are the forces that sustain, revitalize, and transform them. And what are human rights in the process of becoming? This book will be of immense interest to those studying and researching across Politics, Human Rights, Gender, and Law. It was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Human Rights.

Opening Up James Farrer, 2002-05-29. More and more men and women in China are having sex before marriage, creating a new youth sex culture based on romance, leisure, and free choice. Farrer explores this change by tracing the basic elements in talk about sex and sexuality in Shanghai.

A New Book of the Grotesques Robert Dunne, 2005. Sherwood Anderson, remembered chiefly as a writer of short stories about life in the Midwest at the turn of the century, was acknowledged as an innovator of the short story form. This book looks at Anderson's early fiction from contemporary interpretative methodologies.

particularly from poststructuralist approaches      Hiding Man Tracy Daugherty, 2025-06-25 In the 1960s Donald Barthelme came to prominence as the leader of the Postmodern movement He was a fixture at the New Yorker publishing more than 100 short stories including such masterpieces as Me and Miss Mandible the tale of a thirty five year old sent to elementary school by clerical error and A Shower of Gold in which a sculptor agrees to appear on the existentialist game show Who Am I He had a dynamic relationship with his father that influenced much of his fiction He worked as an editor a designer a curator a news reporter and a teacher He was at the forefront of literary Greenwich Village which saw him develop lasting friendships with Thomas Pynchon Kurt Vonnegut Tom Wolfe Grace Paley and Norman Mailer Married four times he had a volatile private life He died of cancer in 1989 The recipient of many prestigious literary awards he is best remembered for the classic novels Snow White The Dead Father and many short stories all of which remain in print today Hiding Man is the first biography of Donald Barthelme and it is nothing short of a masterpiece
