Framley cyclists furious at new facility for Framley cyclists

CYCLE LANE "NOT EVEN AS LONG AS SMALL CYCLE"

FRAMLEY BOROUGH COUNCIL Highways Department has come under fire for a cycle lane in the town centre.

The bike lane adorned stretch of yellow-adapted tarmac, which gobbed up a massive 433,748.91 in construction costs, joins the corner of Down Street to the corner of Millgate, and measures 62cm in length. It is controlled by four sets of traffic lights and is watched 24 hours a day by CCTV.

A spokesman for the Highways Department, Mike Joyce, explained that the cycle lane had been installed after months of careful statistical analysis by a team.

"The figures speak for themselves," he outlined. "Our analysis of Framley's observed history of cycling tragedies show quite categorically that anyone riding a bike over that two-foot stretch of the town centre has a one in four chance of being killed. These measures were essential."

But Tory councillor Geoffrey Caschough is furious at the thing.

"It's an absolute disgrace," he appealed at a meeting in the council chambers last night. "It really is disgraceful. Absolutely disgraceful."

"I just think it really is an absolute disgrace," he added at another time.

And the row about a controversial bit of pavement shows no signs of cooling off, after the fire brigade were called to cut fire a disabled in a wheelchair that became jammed between the four sets of traffic lights.

Elderly Norman Twaddle found himself

by Adam Winst

hanged up in the vertical metalwork after spending an all day shift. She later died of hospital.

Mr Twaddle's daughter Margaret says she intends to fight to have the cycle lane thrown away.

"Before another mother dies, we need to change the rules. Lives are more important than bikes or wheels or this or anyone, so regrettably we must ask the council to then cyclists from that particular cycle lane or at the very least have the whole street destroyed."

But local cyclists are delighted by the death.

"It's added at least three seconds off my journey," says cyclist Alex Groom. "I use it every day. Without it, I'd probably be dead by now. It's saved my life!"

"My trip to work takes a bit longer now," says another, but I like it."

"So do I," says a third.

Last night cyclists started a candlelit vigil at the 62cm cycle lane. A hippy played a guitar.

Piccolo Kneecock

NICOLA PEACOCK has been elected the Chair of the Stockford Spicers.

She will hold this position until the next trimester.

The controversial cycle lane, yesterday. An elderly got caught there.

Racist attack

TWO BLACK MEN in their twenties are being held in connection with the attempted murder of Warren Beards on Christmas Eve.

Beards, 22, a nurse, was kicked and stabbed by the two thugs as he was putting the finishing touches to his decorations.

He was later admitted to Framley General Hospital with massive internal haemorrhaging.

DC Grogan McElough, leading the investigation, "described it as an horrific and reprehensible attack on a young man who was preparing for a quiet family Christmas by putting a 150 noon wreath on his roof," said his spokesperson yesterday.

Nurses described his condition.
