Wordsworth, Coleridge, and 'the language of the heavens' Thomas Owens, 2019-05-30 Thomas Owens explores some of the exultant visions inspired by Wordsworth's and Coleridge's close scrutiny of the night sky the natural world and the domains of science He examines a set of scientific patterns drawn from natural geometric celestial and astronomical sources which Wordsworth and Coleridge used to express their ideas about poetry religion literary criticism and philosophy and establishes the central importance of analogy in their creative thinking Analogies prompted the poets imaginings in geometry and cartography in nature representations of the moon and natural history studies of spider webs streams and dew in calculus and conical refraction and in the discovery of infra red and ultraviolet light Although this is primarily a study of the patterns which inspired their writing the findings overturn the prevalent critical consensus that Wordsworth and Coleridge did not have the access interest or capacity to understand the latest developments in nineteenth century astronomy and mathematics which they did in fact possess Wordsworth Coleridge and the language of the heavens reinstates many relationships which the poets had with scientists and their sources Most significantly the book illustrates that these sources are not simply another context or historical lens through which to engage with Wordsworth's and Coleridge's work but are instead a controlling device of the symbolic imagination Exploring the structures behind Wordsworth's and Coleridge's poems and metaphysics stakes out a return to the evidence of the Romantic imagination not for its own sake but in order to reveal that their analogical configuration of the world provided them with a scaffold for thinking an intellectual orrery which ordered artistic consciousness and which they never abandoned The Delineator R.
