Socialtechnological Man Nancie L. Gonzalez, 2019-07-16 Recent international attention has focused on desertification and its concomitants especially the diminution of flora and fauna in arid and semiarid lands and the resulting reduction in the economic value of those lands Natural factors such as drought and wind erosion as well as various technological practices have been blamed for the present situation in many countries Most observers agree that human beings have been both perpetrators and victims of desertification Anthropologists have long been interested in documenting how different societies have affected and been affected by their environments The papers in this volume present case studies of societies ranging from ancient Peru to contemporary Israel along with several topically oriented works All are designed to illustrate how various societies whether by water management or by the exploitation of plants and animals have attempted to achieve ecological balance Social organization and ideology as well as technology are discussed as important variables affecting the ways in which populations adapt to or cope with desertification

Isbell,2010-07-05 Since prehistoric times Andean societies have been organized around the ayllu a grouping of real or ceremonial kinspeople who share labor resources and ritual obligations Many Andean scholars believe that the ayllu is as ancient as Andean culture itself possibly dating back as far as 6000 B C and that it arose to alleviate the hardships of farming in the mountainous Andean environment In this boldly revisionist book however William Isbell persuasively argues that the ayllu developed during the latter half of the Early Intermediate Period around A D 200 as a means of resistance to the process of state formation Drawing on archaeological evidence as well as records of Inca life taken from the chroniclers Isbell asserts that prehistoric ayllus were organized around the veneration of deceased ancestors whose mummified bodies were housed in open sepulchers or challups where they could be visited by descendants seeking approval and favors By charting the temporal and spatial distribution of chullpa ruins Isbell offers a convincing new explanation of where when and why the ayllu developed Ancient Households on the North Coast of Peru Ilana

Johnson,David Pacifico,Robyn E. Cutright,2021-02-01 Ancient Households on the North Coast of Peru provides insight into the organization of complex urban and state level society in the region from a household perspective using observations from diverse North Coast households to generate new understandings of broader social processes in and beyond Andean prehistory Many volumes on this region are limited to one time period or civilization often the Moche While Ancient Households on the North Coast of Peru does examine the Moche it offers a wider thematic approach to a broader swath of prehistory Chapters on various time periods use a comparable scale of analysis to examine long term continuity and change and draw on a large corpus of prior research on states rulership and cosmology to offer new insight into the intersection of household community and state Contributors address social reproduction construction and reinforcement of gender identities and social hierarchy household permanence and resilience and expression of identity through cuisine This volume challenges common concepts of the household in archaeology by demonstrating the complexity and heterogeneity of household level dynamics as they intersect with institutions at broader social scales and takes a comparative perspective on daily life within one region of the Andes It will be of interest to both students and scholars of South American archaeology and household archaeology Contributors Brian R Billman David Chicoine Guy S Duke Hugo Ikehara Giles Spence Morrow Jessica Ortiz Edward Swenson Kari A Zabler

Peruvian Prehistory Richard W. Keatinge, 1988-03-10 Peruvian Prehistory offers an authoritative survey of the cultural evolution of Peru from the appearance of the first inhabitants around 10 000 BC to the arrival of the Spanish in 1534 The book is divided chronologically into three main parts which examine in turn the highland and lowland zones in the Preceramic and Initial periods the development of complex society at Chavin Tiwanaku and Huari and in the Moche and Nazca cultures and the culmination of this process the Pan Andean empire of the Incas and the way this can be studied through a combination of archaeology and ethnohistoric research A fourth concluding section deals with the often neglected tropical forest region of Peru and its formative influence on the evolution of Andean culture The first collective assessment of Peruvian archaeology for a generation this volume traces the processes of political social and economic change in Andean civilisation in a manner that will attract many with no specialist interest in Peru
