Capital, Coercion, and Postcommunist States Gerald M. Easter,2012-09-18 The postcommunist transitions produced two very different types of states The contractual state is associated with the countries of Eastern Europe which moved toward democratic regimes consensual relations with society and clear boundaries between political power and economic wealth The predatory state is associated with the successors to the USSR which instead developed authoritarian regimes coercive relations with society and poorly defined boundaries between the political and economic realms In Capital Coercion and Postcommunist States Gerald M Easter shows how the cumulative result of the many battles between state coercion and societal capital over taxation gave rise to these distinctive transition outcomes Easter s fiscal sociology of the postcommunist state highlights the interconnected paths that led from the fiscal crisis of the old regime through the revenue bargains of transitional tax regimes to the eventual reconfiguration of state society relations His focused comparison of Poland and Russia exemplifies postcommunism s divergent institutional forms The Polish case shows how conflicts over taxation influenced the emergence of a rule of law contractual state social market capitalism and civil society The Russian case reveals how revenue imperatives reinforced the emergence of a rule by law predatory state concessions style capitalism and dependent society

Andromedum Sergey Brezhnev, 2015-09-02 Jack Philips is running and he can't even remember why Hunted through the remnants of a world where our past exists only as fractured clues Jack has almost as little information about his identity Only a sword too fine for any common soldier and flashes of memory telling him things that would get anyone else in the kingdom executed The kingdom itself is a mystery its king determined to maintain that mystery by any means necessary Knowledge is hoarded the majority of the kingdom reduced to living in a world of swords and horses kings and petty wars Around them steel and glass stand as half remembered snatches of the past but for most people they point to truths they will never be permitted to grasp When Jack meets Henry and Dahlia a father and daughter dedicated to the preservation of the past his simple sprint for the edges of the kingdom turns into something more complex Henry wants to save as much as he can of what came before the kingdom Dahlia simply wants to tear the kingdom down Ultimately Jack must decide whether to keep on running or finally make a stand for the world as it should be Either way the hunters are still coming He might not remember them but they definitely remember him
