Animals in Keri Hulme's "The Windeater/Te Kaihau" Ann-Catherine Nabholz, 1995      Spiritcarvers Antonella Sarti, 2022-06-08 In a land caught between the sea and cloud where the natural landscape still refuses civilization, there are those the composers of words, tellers of tales that help shape the minds of the people that live on its shores. They are spiritcarvers. New Zealand writing today is engaging in an intent struggle to subvert multiple shapes into voices. These interviews, as a record of biographical orature, are shaped into presenting the figure of the storyteller through memory and language explorations of how we imagine and create ourselves with and into words. Here we encounter the dichotomy of fiction and non-fiction, myth and consensual reality, imagination and truth: do we live within our own selected fictions? Identity is shaped by the author's sense of displacement as well as of belonging, meeting otherness with dispossession, discovering connection through isolation. Among the focal points of the interviews are the role of women's writing, Maori writing, interrelations among different cultures, and the influence of literary and oral tradition within New Zealand.      Short Story Index, 1989      Writing Along Broken Lines Otto Heim, 1998 Covering the two decades from 1972, Swiss scholar Otto Heim presents detailed readings of the novels and short fiction by Heretaunga Pat Baker, Alan Duff, Patricia Grace, Keri Hulme, Witi Ihimaera, Bruce Stewart, J. C. Sturm, Apirana Taylor, and Ngahuia Te Awekotuku. His book places the fiction by Maori writers in the context of a culture of survival and traces its textual engagement with violence between empathy and sacrifice, from the privacy of domestic violence to the public arenas of systemic violence and war. He argues that out of this confrontation with violence emerges a distinctive ethnic world view created by the construction of individual experience, the development of an ideological stance, and the expression of a spiritual orientation. Heim's analysis shows works of fiction by contemporary Maori writers as challenging explorations of the constraints placed on the literary imagination by the urgent facts of the human condition and the imperatives of culture.      *Walter M. The Woman in the Red Dress Minrose Gwin, 2002 Graceful and impassioned The Woman in the Red Dress offers important new approaches to narratives about father daughter incest as well as stories that contaminate the myth of home as a safe space and map a geography of sexual violence victimization and survival Gwin situates her analysis of fiction such as Morrison's The Bluest Eye Alice Walker's The Color Purple Dorothy Allison's Bastard out of Carolina and Jane Smiley's A Thousand Acres within contemporary debates concerning survivor discourse theories of domestic space and issues of race and class She also explores books such as Hulme's The Bone People that enter a murky and liminal queer space in which gender itself travels and the most claustrophobic physical and social spaces can unexpectedly unhinge and open

Campsite Charlie Hailey, 2008-06-01 Camping is perhaps the quintessential American activity We camp to escape to retreat to find ourselves The camp serves as a home away from home where we might rethink a deliberate life We also camp to find a new collective space where family and society converge Many of us attended summer camps and the legacies of these childhood havens form part of American culture In Campsite Charlie Hailey provides a highly original and artfully composed interpretation of the cultural significance and inherently paradoxical nature of camps and camping in contemporary American society Offering a new understanding of the complex relationship between place time and architecture in an increasingly mobile culture Hailey explores campsites as places that necessitate a unique combination of contrasting qualities such as locality and foreignness mobility and fixity temporality and permanence and public domesticity Camping methods reflect the rigid flexibility of the process leaving home arriving at a site clearing an area making and then finally breaking camp The phases of this sequence are both separate and indistinct To understand this paradox Hailey emphasizes the role of process He constructs a philosophical framework to elucidate the placefulness or sense of place of such temporary constructions and provides alternative understandings of how we think of the home and of public versus private dwelling spaces Historically camps have been used as places for scouting out future towns for clearing provisional spaces and for making semipermanent homes away from home To understand how cultures of camping develop and accommodate this dynamic mix of permanence and flexibility Hailey looks at three basic qualities of the camp as a site for place making as a populist precursor for modern built environments and as a method Hailey's creative and philosophical approach to camps and camping allows him to construct links between such diverse projects as the philosophers camps of the mid nineteenth century the idiosyncratic camping clubs that arose with the automobile culture in the early 1920s and more recent uses of campsites as temporary housing for those displaced by Hurricane Katrina In Campsite Hailey makes a singular and significant contribution to current studies of place and vernacular architecture while also reconfiguring methods of research in cultural studies architectural theory and geography
