Empire, Education, and Indigenous Childhoods Helen May,Baljit Kaur,2016-05-06 Taking up a little known story of education schooling and missionary endeavor Helen May Baljit Kaur and Larry Prochner focus on the experiences of very young native children in three British colonies In missionary settlements across the northern part of the North Island of New Zealand Upper Canada and British controlled India experimental British ventures for placing young children of the poor in infant schools were simultaneously transported to and adopted for all three colonies From the 1820s to the 1850s this transplantation of Britain s infant schools to its distant colonies was deemed a radical and enlightened tool that was meant to hasten the conversion of heathen peoples by missionaries to Christianity and to European modes of civilization The intertwined legacies of European exploration enlightenment ideals education and empire building the authors argue provided a springboard for British colonial and missionary activity across the globe during the nineteenth century Informed by archival research and focused on the shared as well as unique aspects of the infant schools colonial experience Empire Education and Indigenous Childhoods illuminates both the pervasiveness of missionary education and the diverse contexts in which its attendant ideals were applied

Historical and Archaeological Perspectives on Gender Transformations Suzanne M. Spencer-Wood,2012-12-09 In many facets of Western culture including archaeology there remains a legacy of perceiving gender divisions as natural innate and biological in origin This belief follows that men are naturally pre disposed to public intellectual pursuits while women are innately designed to care for the home and take care of children In the interpretation of material culture accepted notions of gender roles are often applied to new findings the dichotomy between the domestic sphere of women and the public sphere of men can color interpretations of new materials In this innovative volume the contributors focus explicitly on analyzing the materiality of historic changes in the domestic sphere around the world Combining a global scope with great temporal depth chapters in the volume explore how gender ideologies identities relationships power dynamics and practices were materially changed in the past thus showing how they could be changed in the future

Te Hāhi Mihinare | The Māori Anglican Church Hirini Kaa,2020-09-12 The arrival of the Anglican Church with its claims to religious power was soon followed by British imperial claims to temporal power Political legal economic and social institutions were designed to be the bastions of control across the British Empire However they were also places of contestation and engagement at a local and national level and this was true of New Zealand M ori culture was constantly capable of adaptation in the face of changing contexts This ground breaking book explores the emergence of Te H hi Mihinare the M ori Anglican Church Anglicanism brought to New Zealand by English missionaries in 1814 was made widely known by M ori evangelists as iwi adapted the religion to make it their own The ways in which Mihinare M ori Anglicans engaged with the settler Anglican Church in New Zealand and created their own unique Church casts light on the broader question of how M ori interacted with and transformed European culture and institutions Hirini Kaa vividly describes the quest for a M ori Anglican bishop the translation into te reo of the prayer book and the development of a distinctive M ori Anglican ministry for today s world Te H hi Mihinare uncovers a rich history that enhances our understanding of New Zealand s past

Where the Waves Fall K.R. Howe,2023-05-03 Where the Waves Fall 1984 centres the stories of the Pacific Islanders and how they were affected by European explorers and colonisers in this unique account of human settlement and cultural interchange in the Pacific islands It follows the fortunes of the seafarers who discovered island after island in the world s largest ocean traces the development of their civilisations and examines in depth the interaction between them and the newcomers European explorers traders beachcombers missionaries merchants who from the sixteenth century came in an increasing series of waves The book s framework enables the author to throw new light on hitherto isolated events Novel suggestions are advanced as to why some islands became kingdoms in the earlier years of European contact and why others did not and of how and why missionaries were accepted on some islands but not on others Nor does Professor Howe shrink from provocative and at times controversial arguments concerning the ambitions and strategies of island leaders and indeed the overall nature and extent of the initiatives taken by the islanders

Church and State in Old and New Worlds Hilary M. Carey,John Gascoigne,2010-12-06 Church state relations have always been important but the need for an historical re evaluation has been heightened by recent developments in the relations between governments and religious bodies Drawing on a wide range of historical case studies this book focuses particularly on the way in which the traditional European Old World fusion of church and state was reshaped in the New World of European settler colonies of the United States Australia and New Zealand Its analysis illuminates both the historical dynamics of such changes and the way in which such developments continue to influence the conduct of church state relations in both the Old and the New Worlds

Christianity, Modernity and Culture John Stenhouse,G. A. Wood,2005 For much of the twentieth century New Zealand historians like most Western scholars largely took it for granted that as modernity waxed religion would wane Secularization the fading into insignificance of religion would distinguish the modern era from previous ages Until the 1980s only a handful of scholars around the world raised serious empirical and theoretical questions about a Grand Theory that had become central to the self understanding of the social sciences and of the modern world Heated debates since then and the unmistakable resurgence of world religions have raised fundamental questions about the empirical and theoretical adequacy of secularization theory and especially about how far it applies outside Europe This volume revisits New Zealand history when secularization is no longer taken for granted as the Only Big Story that illuminates the country's social and cultural history Contributors explore how New Zealanders diverse religious and spiritual traditions have shaped practical everyday concerns in politics racial and ethnic relations science the environment family life gender relations and other domains Pākehā Settlements in a Māori World Ian Smith,2020-01-28 Pākehā Settlements in a Māori World offers a vivid account of early European experience in these islands through material evidence offered by the archaeological record As European exploration in the 1770s gave way to sealing whaling and timber felling Pākehā visitors first became sojourners in small remote camps then settlers scattered around the coast Over time mission stations were established alongside farms businesses and industries and eventually towns and government centres Through these decades a small but growing Pākehā population lived within and alongside a Māori world often interacting closely This phase drew to a close in the 1850s as the numbers of Pākehā began to exceed the Māori population and the wars of the 1860s brought brutal transformation to the emerging society and its economy Archaeologist Ian Smith tells the story of adaptation change and continuity as two vastly different cultures learned to inhabit the same country From the scant physical signs of first contact to the wealth of detail about daily life in established settlements archaeological evidence amplifies the historical narrative Glimpses of a world in the midst of turbulent change abound in this richly illustrated book As the visual narrative makes clear archaeology brings history into the present making the past visible in the landscape around us and enabling an understanding of complex histories in the places we inhabit From Tamaki-Makaurau-Rau to Auckland Russell Stone,2013-10-01 Drawing on oral histories of the indigenous Māori peoples of the area archaeological evidence and early missionaries diaries and histories this model of local history provides a comprehensive contextual history of the city of Auckland from first settlement of the area about 800 years ago up to 1840

The Future of Christianity John Stenhouse,Brett Knowles,Antony Wood,2004 This book written by a group of New Zealand scholars theologians historians and lawyers examines the question of New Zealand's Western culture and Christianity The contributors explore recent debates over secularisation exploring its merits and explanatory power while also showing its limitations Anglicanism and the British Empire, C.1700-1850 Rowan Strong,2007-07-26 An examination of how during the period 1700-1850 Anglican Christian understanding of the British Empire powerfully shaped the identities both of the people living in British colonies in North America Bengal Australia and New Zealand including colonists indigenous peoples and Negro slaves and of the English in Britain Te Puna - A New Zealand Mission Station Angela Middleton,2009-03-01 Evangelical missionary societies have been associated with the processes of colonisation throughout the globe from India to Africa and into the Pacific In late 18th century Britain the Church Missionary Society for Africa and the East CMS began its missionary ventures and in the first decade of the 19th century sent three of its members to New South Wales Australia and then on to New Zealand an unknown little explored part of the world Across the globe a common material culture travelled with its evangelizing and later colonizing settlers with artefacts appearing as cultural markers from Cape Town in South Africa to Tasmania in Australia and the even more remote Bay of Islands in New Zealand After missionization colonization occurred Additionally common themes of interaction with indigenous peoples household economy the development of commerce and social and gender relations also played out in these communities This work is unique in that it provides the first archaeological examination of a New Zealand mission station and as such makes an important contribution to New Zealand historical archaeology and history It also situates the case study in a global context making a significant contribution to the international field of mission archaeology It informs a wider audience about the processes of colonization and culture contact in New Zealand along with the details of the material culture of the country s first European settlers providing a point of comparison with other outposts of British colonization
