Te Timatangataau Tatau:

The Fabric of Welfare Margaret Tennant, 2007 Throughout history the welfare of the people has been a contested area Is it the responsibility of the state The churches The extended family Organised charities or informal community groups The Fabric of Welfare is about the many points of contact between voluntary welfare and government social services and the complex pattern woven by these different threads The country's welfare history is shaped by its colonial past with the predominantly British influences transmitted by an immigrant society in the nineteenth century by its Maori population with a strong communal ethos by the shaping forces of the welfare state by two world wars and economic depression and by both free market policies and rapid social change in recent years In tracing the interdependence of state and voluntary provision of welfare from 1840 to 2005 Margaret Tennant offers new perspectives on New Zealand social history This is a rigorous analysis but it is also a history illuminated by people The text is illustrated with stories about the people who were moved to save to reform to care to support and the people who needed that essential sustenance From the nun who sees a distraught woman about to throw her child into the sea and sets out to care for foundlings to city missionaries community minded public servants businessmen philanthropists and the entrepreneurial organisers of floral fetes and telethons these accounts tell us much about the history of welfare in all its interconnections

Glamour in the Pacific Fiona Paisley, 2009-07-08 Since its inception in 1928 the Pan Pacific Women's Association PPWA has witnessed and contributed to enormous changes in world and Pacific history Operating out of Honolulu this women's network established a series of conferences that promoted social reform and an internationalist outlook through cultural exchange For the many women attracted to the project from China Japan the Pacific Islands and the major settler colonies of the region the association's vision was enormously attractive despite the fact that as individuals and national representatives they remained deeply divided by colonial histories Glamour in the Pacific tells this multifaceted story by bringing together critical scholarship from across a wide range of fields including cultural history international relations and globalization gender and empire postcolonial studies population and world health studies world history and transnational history Early chapters consider the first PPWA conferences and the decolonizing process undergone by the association Following World War II a new generation of nonwhite women from decolonized and settler colonial nations began to claim leadership roles in the Association challenging the often Eurocentric assumptions of women's internationalism In 1955 the first African American delegate brought to the fore questions about the relationship of U S race relations with the Pan Pacific cultural internationalist project The effects of cold war geopolitics on the ideal of international cooperation in the era of decolonization were also considered The work concludes with a discussion of the revival of East meets West as a basis for world cooperation endorsed by the United Nations in 1958 and the overall contributions of the PPWA to world culture politics The internationalist vision of the early twentieth century imagined a world in which race and empire had been relegated to the past Significant numbers of women from around the Pacific brought this shared vision together with their concerns for peace social progress and cooperation to the lively even glamorous political experiment of the Pan Pacific Women s Association Fiona Paisley tells the stories of this extraordinary group of women and illuminates the challenges and rewards of their politics of antiracism one that still resonates today

Humane Music Education for the Common Good Iris M. Yob, Estelle R. Jorgensen, 2020-03-17 Why teach music Who deserves a music education Can making and learning about music serve the common good A collection of essays considers the answers In Humane Music Education for the Common Good scholars and educators from around the world offer unique responses to the recent UNESCO report titled Rethinking Education Toward the Common Good This report suggests how through purpose policy and pedagogy education can and must respond to the challenges of our day in ways that respect and nurture all members of the human family The contributors use this report as a framework to explore the implications and complexities that it raises The book begins with analytical reflections on the report and then explores pedagogical case studies and practical models of music education that address social justice inclusion individual nurturance and active involvement in the greater public welfare The collection concludes by looking to the future asking what more should be considered and exploring how these ideals can be even more fully realized This volume boldly expands the boundaries of the UNESCO report to reveal new ways to think about be invested in and use music education as a center for social change both today and going forward

Panguru and the City: Kāinga Tahi, Kāinga Rua Melissa Matutina Williams, 2016-03-09 Travelling from Hokianga to Auckland in the middle decades of the twentieth century the people of Panguru established themselves in the workplaces suburbs churches and schools of the city Melissa Matutina Williams writes from the heart of these communities The daughter of a Panguru family growing up in Auckland she writes a perceptive account of urban migration through the stories of the Panguru migrants Through these vibrant oral narratives the history of M ori migration is relocated to the tribal and wh nau context in which it occurred For the people of Panguru migration was seldom viewed as a one way journey of new beginnings it was experienced as a lifelong process of developing a coexistent home place for themselves and future generations Dreams of a brighter future drew on the cultural foundations of a tribal homeland and past Panguru and the City K inga Tahi K inga Rua traces their negotiations with people and places from Auckland s inner city boarding houses places of worship and dance halls to workplaces and Maori Affairs homes in the suburbs It is a history that will resonate with M ori from all tribal areas who shared in the quiet task of working against state policies of assimilation the economic challenges of the 1970s and neoliberal policies of the 1980s in order to develop dynamic M ori community sites and networks which often remained invisible in the cities of Aotearoa New Zealand

Maori Health and Government Policy 1840-1940 Derek A. Dow, 1999 This book maps official endeavours to meet Maori health needs during the first hundred years of organised European settlement in New Zealand Focusing on policy initiative rather than health outcomes Maori Health and Government Policy explores four major themes the administration and funding of Maori health the association between

Maori and hospitals the subsidised medical officers who provided primary health care and infection control and the sanitary measures Other topics include the role of missionary medicine in the 1840s and 1850s and Maori health research A Civilized Community Margaret McClure,2013-10-01 A history of social security in New Zealand A History of New Zealand Women Barbara Brookes,2016-02-15 What would a history of New Zealand look like that rejected Thomas Carlyle's definition of history as the biography of great men and focused instead on the experiences of women One that shifted the angle of vision and examined the stages of this country's development from the points of view of wives daughters mothers grandmothers sisters and aunts That considered their lives as distinct from though often unwillingly influenced by those of history's great men In her ground breaking History of New Zealand Women Barbara Brookes provides just such a history This is more than an account of women in New Zealand from those who arrived on the first waka to the Grammy and Man Booker Prize winning young women of the current decade It is a comprehensive history of New Zealand seen through a female lens Brookes argues that while European men erected the political scaffolding to create a small nation women created the infrastructure necessary for colonial society to succeed Concepts of home marriage and family brought by settler women and integral to the developing state transformed the lives of Māori women The small scale of New Zealand society facilitated rapid change so that by the twenty first century women are no longer defined by family contexts In her long awaited book Barbara Brookes traces the factors that drove that change Her lively narrative draws on a wide variety of sources to map the importance in women's lives not just of legal and economic changes but of smaller joys such as the arrival of a piano from England or the freedom of riding a bicycle The Women's War Deborah Montgomerie,2001 This book explains the ambiguities of wartime changes in the private and public lives of New Zealand women It considers women as mothers wives and lovers as well as workers using many examples from real lives Deborah Montgomerie's main argument is that despite the changes the war was essentially a conservative period pointing out that understanding the continuities in gender relations is as important as cataloguing female firsts Her book stylishly challenges accepted wisdom and offers a clear fresh view of a period often viewed through the blurry lens of nostalgia and anecdote BOOK JACKET Early Stories from Founding Members of the Māori Women's Welfare League Mira Szaszy,1993 A collection of early stories from Maori Women's Welfare League as told by founding members to Dame Mira Szaszy Publisher's description Women's Studies Journal ,1997 Hecate ,1997 Pacific Studies ,2006 Papers form a formal symposium which convened in February 2005 during the annual meetings of ASAO on Lihue Kauai Island Hawaii Yearbook of New Zealand Jurisprudence ,2005 The New Zealand Journal of History ,2004 The Political Economy of New Zealand Chris Rudd,Brian Roper,1997 State policy making in New Zealand in recent years has undergone a fundamental transformation from social democratic Keynesianism to New Right monetarism Like its predecessor State and Economy in New Zealand this book critically examines this important shift by considering the interrelationship between the state the economy and society in New Zealand while providing an historical analysis of these changes over prolonged periods of time An appreciation of the broader historical context is essential for a full understanding of the post 1984 reforms The book investigates the major changes in New Zealand s political economy that have taken place during the twentieth century focusing in particular on the post war era The period falls into two distinct epochs The first from 1945 1973 was characterized by economic prosperity and by social integration and political stability at least until the late 1960 s The second from 1974 to the present has been characterized by economic stagnation societal conflict and political instability The Political Economy of New Zealand will be of interest to students of New Zealand politics economics history sociology education and public policy Pacific
