Teach Me About Smelling:

Teach Me about Smelling Joy Wilt Berry, 1988 Teach me about smelling Teach Me about Smelling Joy Berry, 2022-01-15 Teaching Myself to See Tito Mukhopadhyay, 2021 Teaching Myself to See deals with Tito's struggles to participate in a world full of visual details. As a person with autism, Tito is visually selective, processing the myriad of details seeping in through the eye rather than the whole. Tracing Tito's experiences to learn to see in his own hyper-visual way through art, through magazines, through everyday life, Teaching Myself to See is a work of auto-anthropology capturing in words, sentences, paragraphs, poems, a way of seeing that might seem so bewildering that doctors and psychologists told his mother he wouldn't be able to think. This book proves otherwise. By teaching us to look through his eyes, Tito shows us the miracle and immense complexity of sight of neuro-atypicals and neuro-typicals alike. Page 4 of cover How to Smell Like God Steven James, 2005-09 How to Smell Like God is filled with humorous and gripping true stories to help teens discover what it really means to know God, serve Jesus, and be led by the Holy Spirit. After each story, readers are challenged to apply the message to their own lives. Dating a Ghost! Marishima Shiro, Living together with a handsome man no wait ghost Yui Yamada's in her second year of high school when her nagging parents are sent overseas to Brazil for work. She was about to rejoice over finally getting to live alone in her very own apartment, yay, when she found out there was a ghost already living there. But wait, this ghost isn't scary at all. Though he sure is obnoxious. Whether she likes it or not, this ghost whose awful personality puts his handsome face to shame is going to be her roommate from here on out. The Scent of Ancient Magic Britta K. Ager, 2022-04-27 Magic was a fundamental part of the Greco-Roman world. Curses, erotic spells, healing charms, divination, and other supernatural methods of trying to change the universe were everyday methods of coping with the difficulties of life in antiquity. While ancient magic is most often studied through texts like surviving Greco-Egyptian spellbooks and artifacts like lead curse tablets, for a Greek or Roman magician, a ritual was a rich sensual experience full of unusual tastes, smells, textures, and sounds, bright colors, and sensations like fasting and sleeplessness. Greco-Roman magical rituals were particularly dominated by the sense of smell, both fragrant smells and foul odors. Ritual practitioners surrounded themselves with clouds of fragrant incense and perfume to create a sweet and inviting atmosphere for contact with the divine, and to alter their own perceptions, they also used odors as an instrumental weapon to attack enemies and command the gods. Elsewhere, odiferous herbs were used equally as medical cures and magical ingredients. In literature, scent and magic became intertwined as metaphors, with fragrant spells representing the dangers of sensual perfumes and conversely, smells acting as a visceral way of envisioning the mysterious action of magic. The Scent of Ancient Magic explores the complex interconnection of scent and magic in the Greco-Roman world between 800 BCE and CE 600, drawing on ancient literature and the modern study of the senses to examine the sensory depth and richness of ancient magic. Author Britta K. Ager looks at how ancient magicians used scents as part of their spells to put themselves in the right mindset for an encounter with a god.

or to attack their enemies through scent Ager also examines the magicians who appear in ancient fiction like Medea and Circe and the more metaphorical ways in which their spells are confused with perfumes and herbs This book brings together recent scholarship on ancient magic from classical studies and on scent from the interdisciplinary field of sensory studies in order to examine how practicing ancient magicians used scents for ritual purposes how scent and magic were conceptually related in ancient literature and culture and how the assumption that strong scents convey powerful effects of various sorts was also found in related areas like ancient medical practices and normative religious ritual The Smell of Sugarcane

Smell Matthew Cobb, 2020-05-28 Our sense of smell or olfaction as it is technically known is our most enigmatic sense It can conjure up memories taking us back to very specific places and emotions whilst powerful smells can induce strong feelings of hunger or nausea In the animal kingdom smell can be used to find food a mate or a home to sense danger and to send and receive complex messages with other members of a species Yet despite its fundamental importance in our mental life and in the existence of all animals our scientific understanding of how smell works is limited In this Very Short Introduction Matthew Cobb describes the latest scientific research on smell in humans and other mammals in insects and even in fish He looks at how smell evolved how animals use it to navigate and communicate and disorders of smell in humans Understanding smell especially its neurobiology has proved a big challenge but olfactory science has revealed genetic factors that determine what we can and cannot smell and why some people like a given smell while others find it unbearable He ends by considering future treatments for smell disorders and speculating on the role of smell in a world of robots ABOUT THE SERIES The Very Short Introductions series from Oxford University Press contains hundreds of titles in almost every subject area These pocket sized books are the perfect way to get ahead in a new subject quickly Our expert authors combine facts analysis perspective new ideas and enthusiasm to make interesting and challenging topics highly readable

Moore,2015-08-27 The main purpose of the book is to provide insight into an area that humans often take for granted There are wonderful and exciting stories of organisms using chemical signals as a basis of a sophisticated communication system In many instances chemical signals can provide more detailed and accurate information than any other mode of communication yet this world is hidden from us because of our focus on visual and auditory signals Although we have a diversity of senses available to us humans are primarily auditory and visual animals These stimuli are sent to the more cognitive areas of our brain where they are immediately processed for information We use sounds to communicate and music to excite or soothe us Our vision provides us with communication entertainment and information about our world Even though our world is dominated by other stimulus energies we have chosen in an evolutionary sense either auditory or visual signals to carry our most important information This is not the case for most other organisms Chemical signals mediated through the sense of smell and taste are typically more important and are used more often than other sensory signals The world of communication using chemicals is an alien world for us We are unaware of how important chemical signals are to other organisms and we often overlook the influence of chemical signals in our own life Part of this na vet about chemical signals is due to our cultural focus on visual and auditory signals but a larger part of our collective ignorance is the lack of information about chemical communication in both popular and scientific writings The popular press and popular writings virtually ignore the chemical senses especially in regard to their role or influence for humans and our human culture Academic books and textbooks are no better
