Wushanley,2004-04-01 For nearly a century women physical educators kept an iron fist control of women s intercollegiate athletics within the sex separate spheres of college campuses and under an educational model of competition According to the author Ying Wushanley that control began to loosen significantly when Congress passed Title IX of the Education

Amendments in 1972 Title IX meant greater opportunities for women in educational activities including intercollegiate athletics Ten years after the passage of the law however women not only gave up their educational model but also lost their power and control of women s intercollegiate athletics Playing Nice and Losing looks into the evolution of women s intercollegiate athletics from a historical perspective and examines the demise of the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women AIAW Five major themes emerge the movement from protectionism to sex separation of women s college sports the ascendance of women s sports as a result of the Cold War and power struggle within U S amateur sports the challenge to the sex separatist philosophy the NCAA takeover and bankruptcy of the AIAW and the defeat of the AIAW as a defender of theseparate but equal doctrine With Title IX and formerly men s organizations entering the governance of women s intercollegiate athletics sustaining the sex separatist AIAW became untenable in American society Subject Guide to Books in Print ,1996 The American Marathon Pamela Cooper,1998-04-01 Boston established a footrace but New York City created a marathon culture that annually draws tens of thousands of runners to each of the major American events The American Marathon is the first in depth study of the marathon as a cultural performance that has as much power to unite communities across lines of race ethnicity class and gender as it does to empower individuals This book encompasses more than a century from the fledgling days of the footrace in the 1890s to the popular contemporary marathons that have become corporate sponsored institutions Run in New York City in 1896 and continued in Boston for the next ten years the marathon quickly became the event of the working class athletes particularly Irish Americans Other urban ethnic groups Italians Jews and African Americans who were unwelcome into the elite WASP athletic clubs formed their own running organizations Once emblematic of the immigrant experience the marathon evolved to express middle class nationalism as these immigrants were being assimilated During the 1930s the Great Depression restricted footracing and anti Semitism left important coaches and runners without access to team support The New York Pioneer Club begun in 1936 as an African American team brought the tremendous energy of post World War II Harlem to the American marathon of the 1950s Besides examining the ethnic influence on marathoning Cooper also explores the impact of the Cold War on this sport when fitness and endurance became matters of national pride She shows how the Road Runners Club of America first brought women and large numbers of participant runners into long distance footraces and finally how corporate sponsorship and direct payments to athletes profoundly changed the nature of this once amateur sport My Los Angeles in Black and (Almost) White Andrew Furman,2010-12-07 Growing up in Los Angeles in the 1980s roughly half of Furman s high school basketball teammates lived in the largely Anglo and increasingly Jewish San Fernando Valley while the other half were African Americans bused in from the inner city Los Angeles was embroiled in efforts to desegregate its public school district one of the largest and most segregated in the country Tensions came to a head in the late 1970s as the state implemented its forced busing plan a radical desegregation program that was hotly contested among Los Angeles residents particularly among Valley residents and at all levels of the courts including the U S Supreme Court In My Los Angeles in Black and Almost White the high school s diverse basketball team serves as the entry point for a trenchant exploration of the judicial legislative and neighborhood battles over school desegregation that gripped the city in the aftermath of Brown v Board of Education and that continue to plague our post racial nation Furman accesses a diverse array of opinions about these years and about the current crisis of race and public education by examining landmark judicial decisions public policy studies and newspaper articles and by interviewing key community leaders including former U S Representative Bobbi Fiedler the Jewish activist who led the campaign to stop forced busing in Los Angeles and retired Superior Court Judge Paul Egly with whom Fiedler and her allies wrangled Furman also documents his recent visit to Los Angeles during which he met with several of his former teammates coaches and neighbors At once critical and fair minded My Los Angeles in Black and Almost White cuts through the incendiary rhetoric over school desegregation to offer a lucid engaging and informed account of our long legacy and current challenges regarding race and public education

Muscle and Manliness Axel Bundgaard, 2005-07-11 Axel Bundgaard has produced a meaningful work on the important but little told history of interschool athletics exploring the introduction and nature of sport in the controlled environment of the American boarding school Beginning in the late eighteenth century American educators looked to the English public school as the educational archetype for producing good men good Christians and good leaders The British incorporation of sport into the process of education however took root only slowly in the United States where it seemed alien to Puritan values extolling hard work and deploring play as wasted time Only when educators were convinced that sport was an essential tool in the process of raising the next generation by building character team spirit and leadership did the informal physical play initiated by students in early schools begin to evolve toward the highly organized school sponsored sports of today Using archival material from several eastern boarding schools founded in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries Bundgaard traces this process from its beginnings in the muscular Christianity prevailing in the boarding schools of Victorian England most notably Rugby There athletics and the prefect system older boys shaping the manners and morals of younger ones were used to mold youth into Christian gentlemen and it was believed that the seeds of future military victories were planted on the school playing fields Bundgaard shows how this model of sport and character building was gradually absorbed into the classical curricula of private education in America and then continues to chronicle the dramatic changes in this model through the first decade of the twentieth century as educational philosophies evolved and an ideal of physical vigor and conduct befitting a gentleman emerged Drawing on archival sources at Groton Andover Exeter St Paul s Suffield Williston Woodberry Forest and Worcester Academy interviews personal communications school newspapers and histories of various institutions Bundgaard provides a new critical perspective on the evolution of play and sports for schoolboys This book will stimulate research on the broader subject of American secondary school athletics and pique the interest of sport historians educators and a general audience
