Oceans Between Us Sereana Naepi,2025-07-10 Racism There we said it You can let your shoulders drop now that you know we will say the word and not sidestep it to protect people s comfort Or you can raise your shoulders in preparation for tension as you realise that this book will not talk about unconscious bias or other terms that enable us to excuse ourselves from our own complicity in inaction on or upholding of racist structures Sereana Naepi Salt water carries the weight of powerful stories of migration struggle and survival It is in the sweat of labour the tears of grief and joy and the waves that have shaped generations Like the ocean racism has carved deep scars in the landscapes we navigate In this collection thirteen Pacific scholars rise to turn the tide dissecting the racism embedded in New Zealand s core systems from education and health to justice and climate Through ten essays rooted in the va the relational space of story dialogue and environment each chapter builds on the next weaving together lived experiences and sharp insights Oceans Between Us is both a testimony and a call to action It documents the struggles of Pacific peoples and envisions a world beyond now A rallying cry for justice a demand for equity and a catalyst for change this book is not about survival alone it s about thriving Fern and the Tiki David Paul Ausubel,1960 Maori and the State Richard S. Hill,2010-04-01 Presenting the most recent research and written by an expert in the field this examination explores the principal interrelationships between the British Crown and the Maori people in the 1950s and 1960s when Crown assimilation policies intensified and during the 1970s when the pressure of the Maori renaissance encouraged policies and goals based on biculturalism A subject central to New Zealand s culture this is an important and historical analysis of the country and the wider issue of indigenous peoples rights The Land Is Our History Miranda Johnson,2016-09-20 The Land Is Our History tells the story of indigenous legal activism at a critical political and cultural juncture in Australia Canada and New Zealand In the late 1960s indigenous activists protested assimilation policies and the usurpation of their lands as a new mining boom took off radically threatening their collective identities Often excluded from legal recourse in the past indigenous leaders took their claims to court with remarkable results For the first time their distinctive histories were admitted as evidence of their rights Miranda Johnson examines how indigenous peoples advocated for themselves in courts and commissions of inquiry between the early 1970s to the mid 1990s chronicling an extraordinary and overlooked history in which virtually disenfranchised peoples forced powerful settler democracies to reckon with their demands Based on extensive archival research and interviews with leading participants The Land Is Our History brings to the fore complex and rich discussions among activists lawyers anthropologists judges and others in the context of legal cases in far flung communities dealing with rights history and identity The effects of these debates were unexpectedly wide ranging By asserting that they were the first peoples of the land indigenous leaders compelled the powerful settler states that surrounded them to negotiate their rights and status Fracturing national myths and making new stories of origin necessary indigenous peoples claims challenged settler societies to rethink their sense of belonging Catalog of Copyright Entries. Third Series Library of Congress. Copyright Office,1979 The Ethnographer's Magic and Other Essays in the History of Anthropology George W. Stocking,1992 George Stocking has been widely recognized as the premier historian of anthropology ever since the publication of his first volume of essays Race Culture and Evolution in 1968 As editor of several publications including the highly acclaimed History of Anthropology series he has led the movement to establish the history of anthropology as a recognized research specialization In addition to the study Victorian Anthropology his work includes numerous essays covering a wide range of anthropological topics The eight essays collected in The Ethnographer's Magic consider the emergence of anthropology since the late nineteenth century as an academic discipline grounded in systematic fieldwork Drawing extensively on unpublished manuscript materials the essays focus primarily on Franz Boas and Bronislaw Malinowski the leading figures in the American and the British academic fieldwork traditions According to George Marcus of Rice University the essays represent the most informative and insightful writings on Malinowski and Boas and their legacies that are yet available Beyond their biographical material the essays here touch upon major themes in the history of anthropology its powerfully mythic aspect and persistent strain of romantic primitivism the contradictions of its relationship to the larger sociopolitical sphere its problematic integration of a variety of natural scientific and humanistic inquiries and the tension between its scientific aspirations and its subjectively acquired data To provide an overview against which to read the other essays Stocking has also included a sketch of the history of anthropology from the ancient Greeks to the present For this collection Stocking has written prefatory commentaries for each of the essays as well as two more extended contextualizing pieces An introductory essay Retrospective Prescriptive Reflections places the volume in autobiographical and historiographical context the Afterword Postscriptive Prospective Reflections reconsiders major themes of the essays in relation to the recent past and present situation of academic anthropology Graham Latimer Noel Harrison,2002 An engrossing biography of an outstanding Maori leader The Fixed and the Fickle Hans Mol,2006-01-01 This volume describes the effect of religion on the identity of the native Maoris and Pakehas white settlers in New Zealand The description is woven around the idea that the fixed identity is constantly unglued by the fickle change The Maori charismatic movements are seen as attempts to absorb the devastating effects of Pakeha incursion into a viable system of meaning Yet the white white settlers too had to tame the discontinuities with the past and the ravages of cultural change Religion is seen to be at the forefront of the struggle to defend and reinforce the boundaries around the variety of identities In presenting his thesis the author has brought together a wide range of information other anthropological and sociological studies historical accounts official statements and religious census data
