The Force Of Mortality At Ages 80 To 120 Odense Monographs On Population Aging Series Vol 5:

The Force of Mortality at Ages 80 to 120 A. Roger Thatcher,Väinö Kannisto,James W. Vaupel,1998 This monograph employs new data to re assess the relative merits of various contending models that address the change in the probability of dying between the ages of 80 and 120 years of age The book analyses the population data of thirteen countries all of which have the sufficiently long data histories necessary to draw solid conclusions Dynamic Demographic Analysis Robert Schoen,2016-03-15 This volume presents state of the art analyses from scholars dealing with a range of demographic topics of current concern including longevity mortality and morbidity migration and how population composition impacts intergenerational transfer schemes New approaches are applied to such issues as measuring changes in cohort survivorship in low mortality populations patterns of mortality improvement at older ages and the consequences of heterogeneity in the susceptibility to death Studies examine models of the current status of the HIV AIDS epidemic advance present methods for estimating population change in small areas and strive to disentangle age period and cohort effects In sum the book addresses key contemporary issues in measuring and modeling dynamic populations and advances the frontier of dynamic demography The Cumulative Book Index ,1999 Väestöntutkimuksen vuosikirja ,1997 Subject Guide to Books in Print ,1971 Aanwinsten van de Centrale Bibliotheek (Queteletfonds) Bibliothèque centrale (Fonds Quetelet),1999 American Book Publishing Record ,1999 Demografie, review for population research ,2010 Studia demograficzne ,2001 The Advancing Frontier of Survival Väinö Kannisto,1996 Presents a description of the mortality of the oldest old in the post war era This study examines mortality by single years of age It is combined into 10 year periods in order to secure meaningful numbers of observations at ages where they are few Human Longevity, Individual Life Duration, and the Growth of the Oldest-Old Population Jean-Marie Robine,Eileen M. Crimmins,Shiro Horiuchi,Yi Zeng,2007-03-21 Old age survival has considerably improved in the second half of the twentieth century Life expectancy in wealthy countries has increased on average from 65 years in 1950 to 76 years in 2005 The rise was more spectacular in some countries the life expectancy for Japanese women rose from 62 years to 86 years during the same period Driven by this longevity extension the population aged 80 and over in those countries has grown fivefold from 8.5 million in 1950 to 44.5 million in 2005 Why has such a substantial extension of human lifespan occurred How long can we live In this book these fundamental questions are explored by experts from such diverse fields as biology medicine epidemiology demography sociology and mathematics they report on recent cutting edge studies about essential issues of human longevity such as evolution of lifespan of species genetics of human longevity reasons for the recent improvement in survival of the elderly medical and behavioral causes of deaths among very old people and social factors of long survival in old age International Handbook of Population Aging Peter Uhlenberg,2016-08-23 The International Handbook of Population Aging examines research on a wide array of the profound implications of population aging It demonstrates how the world is changing through population aging and how demography is changing in response to it Supercentenarians Heiner Maier, Jutta Gampe, Bernard Jeune, James W. Vaupel, Jean-Marie Robine, 2010-05-17 Does human mortality after age 110 continue to rise level off or start to decline This book describes a concerted international research effort undertaken with the goal of establishing a database that allows the best possible description of the mortality trajectory beyond the age of 110 The International Database on Longevity IDL is the result of this ongoing effort The IDL contains exhaustive information on validated cases of supercentenarians people 110 years and older and allows unbiased estimates of mortality after age 110 The main finding is remarkable human mortality after age 110 is flat at a probability of death of 50% per year The sixteen chapters of this book discuss age validation of exceptional longevity data on supercentenarians in a series of countries structure and contents of the IDL and statistical analysis of human mortality after age 110 Several chapters include short accounts of specific supercentenarians that add life to demographic research Development of Oldest-old Mortality, 1950-1990 Väinö Kannisto, 1994 States that in developed countries since 1950 death rates among octogenarians nonagenarians and even centenarians have been reduced substantially This title argues that the novelty and magnitude of the observed mortality decline justify it being called a new stage in mortality transition The Transitions of Aging Suchit Arora, 2015 This book explores the unresolved paradox at the heart of population aging namely how to account for the fact that death rates from most non communicable diseases rise as people age yet aggregate death rates from such diseases have decreased overall despite an increasingly aging population It provides a long term historical perspective on this issue presenting evidence that the underpinnings of modern aging extend as far back as the nineteenth century and that aging has boosted per capita healthcare spending The book first outlines the three eras of the Epidemiologic Transition taking readers from its first stage where the threat of infectious diseases loom large through the transitional stage and on to the modern era where non communicable diseases are the primary cause of death Next the book examines the age profiles of people whose childhoods coincide with the different stages of the Epidemiologic Transition Using data from England and Wales one of the few places that have recorded the data necessary for such an exploration the book resolves the aging paradox by studying hidden generational change It traverses historical time and identifies the distinct socio economic and epidemiologic childhood conditions that may appear in it It then compares for instance aging of children brought up in an earlier epidemiologic stage with aging of ones raised in a modern one In the process it explores the influence of childhood development on aging Overall the book has a quantitative bent engaging the reader with analytical issues that will help develop a deeper understanding of modern aging Aging in the Past David I. Kertzer, Peter Laslett, 1995-01-01 Thanks to improved food medicine and living conditions the average age of the population is increasing throughout the modern industrialized world Yet despite the recent upsurge of scholarly interest in the lives of older people and the blossoming of historical demography little historical demographic attention has been paid to the lives of the elderly A landmark volume

Aging in the Past marks the emergence of the historical demographic study of aging Following a masterly explication of the new field by Peter Laslett leading scholars in family history and historical demography offer new research results and fresh analyses that greatly increase our understanding of aging historically and across cultures Focusing primarily on post Industrial Europe and the United States they explore a range of issues under the broad topics of living arrangements widowhood and retirement and mortality This important work provides a much needed historical perspective on and suggests possible alternative solutions to the problems of the aged Thanks to improved food medicine and living conditions the average age of the population is increasing throughout the modern industrialized world Yet despite the recent upsurge of scholarly interest in the lives of older people and the blossoming of historical demography little historical demographic attention has been paid to the lives of the elderly A landmark volume Aging in the Past marks the emergence of the historical demographic study of aging Following a masterly explication of the new field by Peter Laslett leading scholars in family history and historical demography offer new research results and fresh analyses that greatly increase our understanding of aging historically and across cultures Focusing primarily on post Industrial Europe and the United States they explore a range of issues under the broad topics of living arrangements widowhood and retirement and mortality This important work provides a much needed historical perspective on and suggests possible alternative solutions to the problems of the aged

Monographs on population aging [Anonymus AC06449907],1996 Mechanisms of Aging and Mortality Kenneth G. Manton,2000 Reviews the epidemiological demographic and biological basis of population models of human mortality This monograph discusses biological mechanisms which shape the age patterns of mortality It also investigates the effects of an individual health state susceptibility to diseases and death or physical frailty on changes in late age survival

International Differences in Mortality at Older Ages National Research Council,Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education,Committee on Population,Panel on Understanding Divergent Trends in Longevity in High-Income Countries,2011-02-27 In 1950 men and women in the United States had a combined life expectancy of 68 9 years the 12th highest life expectancy at birth in the world Today life expectancy is up to 79 2 years yet the country is now 28th on the list behind the United Kingdom Korea Canada and France among others The United States does have higher rates of infant mortality and violent deaths than in other developed countries but these factors do not fully account for the country s relatively poor ranking in life expectancy International Differences in Mortality at Older Ages Dimensions and Sources examines patterns in international differences in life expectancy above age 50 and assesses the evidence and arguments that have been advanced to explain the poor position of the United States relative to other countries The papers in this deeply researched volume identify gaps in measurement data theory and research design and pinpoint areas for future high priority research in this area In addition to examining the differences in mortality around the world the papers in International Differences in Mortality at Older Ages look at health factors and life style choices commonly believed to contribute to the observed international differences in life expectancy They also identify strategic opportunities for health related interventions This book offers a wide variety of disciplinary and scholarly perspectives to the study of mortality and it offers in depth analyses that can serve health professionals policy makers statisticians and researchers

Population Ageing - A Threat to the Welfare State? Tommy Bengtsson, 2012-09-05 Tommy Bengtsson Population ageing the shift in age distribution towards older ages is of immense global concern It is taking place to a varying degree all over the world more in Europe and some Asian countries less on the African continent The worldwide share of people aged 65 years and above is predicted to increase from 7.5% in 2005 to 16.1% in 2050 UN 2007 p 11 The corresponding figures for developed countries are 15.5 and 26.2% and for developing countries 5.5 and 14.6% While population ageing has been going on for some time in the developed world and will continue to do so most of the change is yet to come for the developing world The change in developing countries however is going to be much faster than it has been in the developed world For example while it took more than 100 years in France and more than 80 years in Sweden for the population group aged 65 and above to increase from 7 to 14% of the population the same change in Japan took place over a 25 year period UN 2007 p 13 The scenario for the future is very similar for most developing countries including highly populated countries like China India and Brazil While the start and the speed differ the shift in age structure towards older ages is a worldwide phenomenon stressing the significance of the concept global ageing
