

The background of the entire image is a photograph of a dirt path that curves through a wooded area. The path is light brown and appears to be covered in fallen leaves or pine needles. On the left side, a large, dark tree trunk is visible, leaning slightly. The right side is filled with dense green foliage and branches. The overall lighting is soft, suggesting a forest setting.

The Front Yard Constance Fenimore Woolson, 2014-01-21 WELL now with Gooster at work in the per dairy and Bepper settled at last as help in a good family and Parlo and Squawly gone to Perugia and Soonter taken by the nuns and Jo Vanny learning the carpenter s trade and only Nounce left for me to see to let alone Granmar of course and Pipper and old Patro it doos seem it really doos as if I might get it done sometime say next Fourth of July now that s only ten months off Twould be something to celebrate the day with that would something like The woman through whose mind these thoughts were passing was sitting on a low stone wall a bundle of herbs a fagot of twigs and a sickle laid carefully beside her On her back was strapped a large deep basket almost as long as herself she had loosened the straps so that she could sit down This basket was heavy one could tell that from the relaxed droop of her shoulders relieved from its weight for the moment as its end rested on a fallen block on the other side of the wall Her feet were bare her dress a narrow cotton gown covered in front to the hem by a dark cotton apron on her head was a straw bonnet which had behind a little cape of brown ribbon three inches deep and in front broad strings of the same brown carefully tied in a bow with the loops pulled out to their full width and pinned on each side of her chin This bonnet very clean and decent the ribbons had evidently been washed more than once was of old fashioned shape projecting beyond the wearer s forehead and cheeks Within its tube her face could be seen with its deeply browned skin its large irregular features smooth thin white hair and blue eyes still bright set amid a bed of wrinkles She was sixty years old tall and broad shouldered She had once been remarkably erect and strong This strength had been consumed more by constant toil than by the approach of old age it was not all gone yet the great basket showed that In addition her eyes spoke a language which told of energy that would last as long as her breath

Dorothy and Other Italian Stories Constance Fenimore Woolson, 2020-09-28 AS it was Saturday many visitors came to the villa Giuseppe receiving them at the open door and waving them across the court or up the stone stairway according to their apparent inclination murmuring as he did so To the garden the Signora North To the salon the Signora Tracy with his most inviting smiles Dorothy probably was with Mrs North in the garden And everybody knew that the tea and the comfortable chairs were up stairs The company therefore divided itself the young people as far as possible the men who like to appear young and the mothers who have heavier cares than the effects of open air light on a middle aged complexion crossing the paved quadrangle to the north hall while the old ladies and the ladies not so old who detest gardens ascended the stairs accompanied by first the contented husbands second the well trained husbands third other men bond or free who cherish no fondness for damp belvederes for grassy mounds or for poisoning themselves on a parapet which has a yawning abyss below Giuseppe was the gardener he became a footman once a week that is on Saturday afternoons when the American ladies of the Villa Dorio received those of their friends who cared to come to their hill top above the Roman Gate of Florence a hill top bearing the appropriate name of Bellosguardo For fair indeed is the outlook from that supremely blessed plateau whether towards the north south east or west with perhaps an especial loveliness towards the west where the Arno winds down to the sea Enchanting as is this Occidental landscape Mrs Tracy had ended by escaping from it When each new person begins Oh what lovely shadows Oh the Carrara Mountains we cannot look at each other Laura and I she explained it s like the two Roman what do you call ems augurs I m incapable of saying another word about the Carrara Mountains Laura and so after this I shall leave them to you This was the cause of Giuseppe s indicating the drawing room and not the garden as Mrs Tracy s domain It was not difficult for Giuseppe to turn himself into a footman Raffaello the butler or cameriere could have turned himself into a coachman a cook a laundress a gardener or even a parlor maid if occasion had so required for Italian servants can do anything And if Mrs Sebright sighed Ah but so badly which was partly true from the English point of view the Americans at least could respond Yes but so easily In truth it was not precisely in accordance with the English standard to be welcomed by smiles of personal recognition from the footman at the door nor to have the tea offered by the butler with an urgent hospitality which was almost tender But Italy is not England radiant smiles from the servants accord perhaps with radiant sunshine from the sky both things being unknown at home As for the American standard it does not exist save as a vacillating pennon The Villa Dorio is a large ancient structure of pale yellow hue as is often the case in Tuscany its facade rises directly from the roadway so that any one can drive to the door and knock by simply leaning from the carriage But privacy is preserved all the same by the massive thickness of the stone walls by the stern iron cages over the lofty lower windows and by an entrance portal which resembles the gateway of a fortress The villa which in the shape of a parallelogram extends round an open court within is large enough for five or six families for in the old days according to the patriarchal Italian custom the married sons of the house with their wives and children were all gathered under its roof

Roberson,1998 Since the colonial days American women have traveled migrated and relocated always faced with the challenge of reconstructing their homes for themselves and their families Women America and Movement offers a journey through largely unexplored territory the experiences of migrating American women These narratives both real and imagined represent a range of personal and critical perspectives some of the women describe their travels as expansive and freeing while others relate the dreadful costs and sacrifices of relocating Despite the range of essays featured in this study the writings all coalesce around the issues of politics poetry and self identity described by Adrienne Rich as the elements of the politics of location treated here as the politics of relocation The narratives featured in this book explore the impact of race class and sexual economics on migratory women their self identity and their roles in family and social life These issues demonstrate that in addition to geographic place ideology is itself a space to be traversed By examining the writings of such women as Louise Erdrich Zora Neale Hurston and Gertrude Stein the essayists included in this volume offer a variety of experiences The book confronts such issues as racist politicking against Native Americans African Americans and Asian immigrants sexist attitudes that limit women to the roles of wife mother and sexual object and exploitation of migrants from Appalachia and of women newly arrived in America These essays also delve into the writings themselves by looking at what happens to narrative structure as authors or their characters cross geographic boundaries The reader sees how women writers negotiate relocation in their texts and how the written word becomes a place where one finds oneself
