*Dr. Damaru Ballabha Paudel**

Introduction

The revenue surplus, domestic debt and foreign aid are the tools to finance the development of a developing country. Foreign aid is the receipt from savings of the foreign citizens. In particular, foreign aid is the transfer of free or heavily discounted economic resources by a donor government to a recipient government either directly or via an international organization, for the purpose of assisting the recipient in improving its economic and social welfare (Arase, 2010). Foreign aid is necessary to meet the domestic resource gap. Moreover, aid is said to fulfill the import-export gap, investment-saving gap and technology gap faced by developing countries.

Foreign aid can be in the form of grants or concession loans or both. It also can be in the form of cash, commodity, reimbursable or direct payment from the donor. It can be bilateral or multilateral. The military aid is not considered as foreign aid. However, aid can be received as technical assistance to build the capacity of recipient country. The modality of aid can be program support, project support, sector wide approach (SWAP), humanitarian assistance and budget Support. The most common form of aid is known as official development assistance (ODA). The loans in the form of ODA also contains compulsory grants component of 25 percent.

The Foreign Aid Business Economic Assistance And Development Cooperation:

The Foreign Aid Business Kunibert Raffer, Hans Wolfgang Singer, 1996 In The Foreign Aid Business Kunibert Raffer and Hans Singer offer an incisive analysis of aid and development finance examine the key issues and new trends in aid as well as proposing a series of fundamental improvements Distinguishing clearly between aid and help in development finance the authors discuss aid in the context of other North South flows such as trade or debt service and describe its role and evolution during the Cold War They address in detail issues such as food aid the European Union's Lomé co operation Japan's emergence as the largest donor and its specific aid philosophy the often neglected question of South South aid and the role of non governmental organizations The new trends analyzed in this book include political conditionality the UNDP's proposal to reorient aid towards human development and the question of aid diversion to the former communist countries The Foreign Aid Business concludes by proposing a series of innovative reforms for development aid and finance The authors advocate major improvements which include combining emergency and development aid the financial accountability of donors international insolvency to stop aid bailing out creditors and the emulation of the Marshall plan's successful self monitoring by recipients Combining a sophisticated analysis of current issues and trends with innovative new ideas for raising the effectiveness of development aid and finance this substantial new book will be welcomed by academic scholars policymakers and practitioners as a major contribution to our understanding of the foreign aid business

The Political Economy of Aid in Palestine Sahar Taghdisi-Rad, 2010-10-04 Despite for many years receiving the highest per capita aid worldwide the economies of the West Bank and Gaza Strip have failed to achieve any lasting developmental outcomes and suffer from major weaknesses which undermine their very survival This book argues that the dominant mainstream approach to the study of aid and aid effectiveness is theoretically and empirically inadequate for a comprehensive understanding and analysis of the workings of aid in developing countries particularly those undergoing conflict This book examines the nature of donor operations in Palestine highlighting the political and ideological determinants of aid allocation and effectiveness and focussing on the role of trade related donor assistance in Palestine more commonly known as Aid for Trade It discusses how such trade related assistance is only another instance of donors working around the conflict as opposed to taking it into account and how aid to Palestine cannot bring about significant improvement as long as the Palestinian economy is fundamentally affected by Israeli occupation settlements and blockade It argues that unless restructured and more carefully targeted aid can only act as a temporary relief mechanism Furthermore the book sheds light on critical areas within Palestinian territories that are in need of development and require significant and immediate attention at both national and international level

Foreign Aid for Indian NGOs Pushpa Sundar, 2020-11-29 This book explores what difference development aid has made to the size complexity style of functioning values and future direction of the NGO sector in India It does this first by giving a comprehensive documentation of the experience of Indian NGOs with foreign aid since

Independence Simultaneously it also analyses in a broad historical perspective some of the issues which are the subject of contemporary debate regarding the voluntary sector and aid such as who decides what is development and how it should be brought about whether foreign donors have hidden agendas and if their aid amounts to cultural imperialism and whether aid has made NGOs more self reliant The book also looks at the tripartite relationship between NGOs donors and governments examining for instance whether the government is justified in imposing restrictions on receipt of funds by NGOs on the grounds that terrorist activities and religiously motivated communal strife are often financed with funds from abroad with NGOs being used as fronts for both
