Substrata Versus Universals In Creole Genesis:

Substrata versus Universals in Creole Genesis Pieter Muysken, Norval Smith, 1986-01-01 Two of the most prominent hypotheses about why the structures of the Creole languages of the Atlantic and the Pacific differ are the universalist and the substrate hypotheses The universalist hypothesis claims essentially that the particular grammatical properties of Creole languages directly reflect universal aspects of the human language capacity and thus Creole genesis involves then the stripping away of the accretions of language history The substrate hypothesis claims on the other hand that creole genesis results from the confrontation of two systems the native languages of the colonized groups and the dominant colonial language and that the native language leaves strong traces in the resulting Creole The contributions of this ground breaking collection present new and historical research on the old debate of substrata versus universals in Creole languages

Creolization and Contact Norval Smith, Tonjes Veenstra, 2001 This volume contains revised and extended versions of a selection of the papers presented at The Amsterdam Workshop on Language Contact and Creolization These studies apply the concept of relexification to creoles as well as other contact languages highlight the relevance of strategies of second language learning for theories of pidgin creole genesis critically discuss the notions levelling koine formation and convergence the relation between types of contact situations and processes of crosslinguistic influence as well as the linguistic consequences of the social structure of the plantation system In addition to discussing English French and Dutch related creoles the papers cover a wide range of contact languages spoken throughout Africa Asia and Europe The breadth and coverage makes this an indispensable title for research in the field of contact linguistics

Language Change and Language Contact in Pidgins and Creoles John McWhorter, 2000-05-15 This book collects a selection of fifteen papers presented at three meetings of the Society for Pidgin and Creole Linguistics in 1996 and 1997 The focus is on papers which approach issues in creole studies with novel perspectives address understudied pidgin and creole varieties or compellingly argue for controversial positions The papers demonstrate how pidgins and creoles shed light on issues such as verb movement contact induced language change and its gradations discourse management via tense aspect particles language genesis substratal transfer and Universal Grammar and cover a wide range of contact languages ranging from English and French based creoles through Portuguese creoles of Africa and Asia Sango Popular Brazilian Portuguese West African Pidgin Englishes and Hawaiian Creole English

Word-Formation and Creolisation Maria Braun, 2009-12-23 This book explores a relatively little investigated area of creole languages word formation It provides the most comprehensive account so far of the word formation patterns of an English based creole language Sranan as found in its earliest sources and compares them with the patterns attested in the input languages One of the few studies of creole morphology based on historical data the book discusses the theoretical problems arising with the historical analysis of creole word formation and provides an analysis along the lines of Booij's 2005 2007 Construction Morphology in which the assumed boundaries between affixation

compounding and syntactic constructions play a very minor role It shows that Early Sranan word formation is characterised by the absence of superstrate derivational affixes the use of free morphemes as derivational markers and of compounding as the major word formation strategy The emergence of Early Sranan word formation involved multiple sources the input languages universals language internal development and different mechanisms reanalysis of free morphemes as derivational markers adaptation of superstrate complex words transfer from the substrates and the creation of innovations The findings render untenable theoretical accounts of creole genesis based on one explanatory factor such as superstrate or substrate influence The Routledge Handbook of Language Contact Evangelia Adamou,Yaron Matras,2020-07-26 The Routledge Handbook of Language Contact provides an overview of the state of the art of current research in contact linguistics Presenting contact linguistics as an established field of investigation in its own right and featuring 26 chapters this handbook brings together a broad range of approaches to contact linguistics including experimental and observational approaches and formal theories a focus on social and cognitive factors that impact the outcome of language contact situations and bilingual language processing the emergence of new languages and speech varieties in contact situations and contact linguistic phenomena in urban speech and linguistic landscapes With contributions from an international range of leading and emerging scholars in their fields the four sections of this text deal with methodological and theoretical approaches the factors that condition and shape language contact the impact of language contact on individuals and language change repertoires and formation This handbook is an essential reference for anyone with an interest in language contact in particular regions of the world including Anatolia Eastern Polynesia the Balkans Asia Melanesia North America and West Africa Africanisms in Afro-American Language Varieties Salikoko S.
