Jameson, Sergiu Musteață, 2019-06-14 Recent years have witnessed a rapid increase in the fields of cultural heritage studies and community archaeology worldwide with expanding discussions about the mechanisms and consequences of community participation This trend has brought to the forefront debates about who owns the past who has knowledge and how heritage values can be shared more effectively with communities who then ascribe meaning and value to heritage materials Globalization forces have created a need for contextualizing knowledge to address complex issues and collaboration across and beyond academic disciplines using more integrated methodologies that include the participation of non academics and increased stakeholder involvement Successful programs provide power sharing mechanisms and motivation that effect more active involvement by lay persons in archaeological fieldwork as well as interpretation and information dissemination processes With the contents of this volume we envision community archaeology to go beyond descriptions of outreach and public engagement to more critical and reflexive actions and thinking The volume is presented in the context of the evolution of cultural heritage studies from the 20th century expert approach to the 21st century people centered approach with public participation and community involvement at all phases of the decision making process The volume contains contributions of 28 chapters and 59 authors covering an extensive geographical range including Africa South America Central America Western Europe Eastern Europe North America and Australasia Chapters provide exemplary cases in a growing lexicon of public archaeology where power is shared within frameworks of voluntary activism in a wide diversity of cooperative settings and stakeholder interactions Benjamin Banneker and Us Rachel Jamison Webster, 2023-03-21 Named a Best Book of the Year by The New Yorker A New York Times Editors Choice Webster's excellent and thought provoking book is on every level about unknowing rather than knowing about pondering the mysteries of Banneker who is often described as one of the first African American scientists and the legacy of 11 generations of a multiracial American family that only now is coming into view Jess Row The New York Times A family reunion gives way to an unforgettable genealogical quest as relatives reconnect across lines of color culture and time putting the past into urgent conversation with the present In 1791 Thomas Jefferson hired a Black man to help survey Washington DC That man was Benjamin Banneker an African American mathematician a writer of almanacs and one of the greatest astronomers of his generation Banneker then wrote what would become a famous letter to Jefferson imploring the new president to examine his hypocrisy as someone who claimed to love liberty yet was an enslaver More than two centuries later Rachel Jamison Webster an ostensibly white woman learns that this groundbreaking Black forefather is also her distant relative Acting as a storyteller

Webster draws on oral history and conversations with her DNA cousins to imagine the lives of their shared ancestors across eleven generations among them Banneker's grandparents an interracial couple who broke the law to marry when America was still a conglomerate of colonies under British rule These stories shed light on the legal construction of race and display the brilliance and resistance of early African Americans in the face of increasingly unjust laws some of which are still in effect in the present day
