Successions Of Meniscomyine And Allomyine Rodents:

The Tertiary Record of Rodents in North America William W. Korth, 2013-11-21 Nearly half of the known species of mammals alive today more than 1600 are rodents or gnawing mammals Nowak and Paradiso 1983 The diversity of rodents is greater than that of any other order of mammals Thus it is not surprising that the fossil record of this order is extensive and fossil material of rodents from the Tertiary is known from all continents except Antarctica and Australia The purpose of this book is to compile the published knowledge on fossil rodents from North America and present it in a way that is accessible to paleontologists and mammalogists interested in evolutionary studies of rodents The literature on fossil rodents is widely scattered between journals on paleontology and mammalogy and in house publications of museums and universities Currently there is no single source that offers ready access to the literature on a specific family of rodents and its fossil history This work is presented as a reference text that can be useful to specialists in rodents fossil or recent as well as mammalian paleontologists working on whole faunas Because the diversity of rodents in the world is essentially limitless any monograph that included all fossil rodents would similarly be limitless Hence this book is limited to the record of Tertiary rodents of North America The several species of South American caviomorph rodents that invaded North America near the end of the Tertiary are also not included in this text

Late Cretaceous and Cenozoic Mammals of North America Michael O. Woodburne, 2004-04-21 This book places into modern context the information by which North American mammalian paleontologists recognize divide calibrate and discuss intervals of mammalian evolution known as North American Land Mammal Ages It incorporates new information on the systematic biology of the fossil record and utilizes the many recent advances in geochronologic methods and their results The book describes the increasingly highly resolved stratigraphy into which all available temporally significant data and applications are integrated Extensive temporal coverage includes the Lancian part of the Late Cretaceous and geographical coverage includes information from Mexico an integral part of the North American fauna past and present

Turritella Zonation Across the Cretaceous-Tertiary Boundary, California Louella Rankin Saul, 1983-01-01

Non-dinosaurian Lower Vertebrates Across the Cretaceous-Tertiary Boundary in Northeastern Montana Laurie J. Bryant, 1989-01-01 00 This study presents current data on vertebrate survival and extinction across the Cretaceous Tertiary boundary in Montana Nearly all the common taxa of reptiles except dinosaurs amphibians and fish survived the end of the Cretaceous Period extinctions were concentrated among rare groups and those found in near shore habitats The author concludes that ocean regression and climatic deterioration may explain these selective extinction patterns better than catastrophic hypotheses This study presents current data on vertebrate survival and extinction across the Cretaceous Tertiary boundary in Montana Nearly all the common taxa of reptiles except dinosaurs amphibians and fish survived the end of the Cretaceous Period extinctions were concentrated among rare groups and those found in near shore habitats The author concludes that ocean regression and climatic deterioration may explain these selective extinction patterns better than catastrophic hypotheses New Pleistocene Conifer Records, Coastal California Daniel I. Axelrod,1983-01-01 Eocene and Oligocene Paleosols of Central Oregon Greg John Retallack,Erick A. Bestland,Theodore J. Fremd,1999-01-01 The Skeleton of the Borophaginae (Carnivora, Canidae) Kathleen Munthe,1989-01-01 This volume provides the first full description and analysis of the postcranial skeleton of the Tertiary canid subfamily Borophagine Borophagines have been stereotyped as noncursorial bone crushing scavengers but comparisons with Recent digitigrade carnivores reveal a surprising diversity of habit among borophagines The author relates functional characteristics to various aspects of borophagine paleoecology including habitat diet social organization and extinction Miocene Floras from the Middlegate Basin, West-central Nevada Daniel I.
