Sir Joseph Banks:

The Letters of Sir Joseph Banks Joseph Banks, Neil Chambers, 2000 Sir Joseph Banks was a great Georgian figure. He circumnavigated the world with Captain James Cook on the H M S Endeavor 1768-1771. He took with him a team of naturalists, illustrators and assistants at a personal cost of pounds 10 000. They made unprecedented collections of flora and fauna in most of the places the H M S Endeavor visited. Banks also led the first British scientific expedition to Iceland in 1772. Later he settled in London and assembled an enormous herbarium cum library. This was remarkable for its size and for the unique material gathered from the Pacific. Banks was elected President of the Royal Society in 1778, a position he held for 41 years, the longest anyone has served in that capacity. He was also the Director of the Royal Botanical Gardens at Kew, which flourished under his control and became greater than any other. He was also an influential privy councillor and advisor to George III and the government. Banks was therefore at the scientific and social centre of Georgian life for more than five decades of rapid change. Once established in this position, he developed an enormous global network of correspondence using letters to shape events, to further knowledge and to build an empire. There was almost no aspect too insignificant for his attention and on matters of importance his opinion was frequently sought. He has been called the Father of Australia for his role in establishing and then actively supporting colonies on the continent he visited with Cook. On matters of trade or agriculture, botany or horticulture, exploration or navigation, coinage, drainage and science, his views could hardly be avoided. Yet he was a warm, authoritative writer with a roiling prose style. His letters make interesting reading for their variety as well as their insight into both his public and private life. This selection is from the over 5 000 letters which he wrote and will in

Patrick O'Brian's biography of naturalist explorer and co-founder of Australia, Joseph Banks, is narrative history at its finest. Published to rave reviews, it reveals Banks to be a man of enduring importance and establishes itself as a classic of exploration. It is in his description of that arduous three-year voyage on the ship Endeavor that Mr O'Brian is at his most brilliant. He makes us understand what life within this wooden world was like with its 94 male souls, two dogs, a cat and a goat. Linda Colley, New York Times. An absorbing, finely written overview meant for the general reader of a major figure in the history of natural science. Frank Stewart, Los Angeles Times.
