Fearing the Worst Samuel F. Wells Jr., 2019-11-26 After World War II the escalating tensions of the Cold War shaped the international system Fearing the Worst explains how the Korean War fundamentally changed postwar competition between the United States and the Soviet Union into a militarized confrontation that would last decades Samuel F Wells Jr examines how military and political events interacted to escalate the conflict Decisions made by the Truman administration in the first six months of the Korean War drove both superpowers to intensify their defense buildup American leaders feared the worst case scenario that Stalin was prepared to start World War III and raced to build up strategic arms resulting in a struggle they did not seek out or intend Their decisions stemmed from incomplete interpretations of Soviet and Chinese goals especially the belief that China was a Kremlin puppet Yet Stalin Mao and Kim Il sung all had their own agendas about which the United States lacked reliable intelligence Drawing on newly available documents and memoirs including previously restricted archives in Russia China and North Korea Wells analyzes the key decision points that changed the course of the war He also provides vivid profiles of the central actors as well as important but lesser known figures Bringing together studies of military policy and diplomacy with the roles of technology intelligence and domestic politics in each of the principal nations Fearing the Worst offers a new account of the Korean War and its lasting legacy

Avoiding Armageddon Andrew Richter, 2011-11-01 The advent of nuclear weapons in the 1940s brought enormous changes to doctrines regarding the use of force in resolving disputes American strategists have been widely credited with most of these Canadians most have assumed did not conduct their own strategic analysis Avoiding Armageddon soundly debunks this notion Drawing on previously classified government records Richter reveals that Canadian defence officials did come to independent strategic understandings of the most critical issues of the nuclear age Canadian appreciation of deterrence arms control and strategic stability differed conceptually from the US models Similarly Canadian thinking on the controversial issues of air defence and the domestic acquisition of nuclear weapons was primarily influenced by decidedly Canadian interests Avoiding Armageddon is a work with far reaching implications It illustrates Canada s considerable latitude for independent defence thinking while providing key historical information that helps make sense of the contemporary Canadian defence debate

American Foreign Relations

Reconsidered Gordon Martel, 2002-11 Brings together 12 scholars of US foreign relations Each contributor provides a concise summary of an important theme in US affairs since the Spanish American War US policy process economic interests relations with the Third World and the nuclear arms race have been highlighted Washington's Taiwan Dilemma, 1949-1950 David Finkelstein, 2014-04-15 The declaration of the People's Republic of China in October 1949 presented American foreign policy officials with two dilemmas how to deal with the communist government on the mainland and what to do about Chiang Kai shek's holdout Nationalist regime on Taiwan By early 1950 these questions were pressing hard upon U S civilian and military planners and policy makers for it appeared that the Red Army was preparing to invade the island Most observers believed that nothing short of American military intervention would preclude a communist victory on Taiwan How U S officials grappled with the question of what to do about Taiwan is at the heart of this study Prior to the publication of this book much of the historical literature on this critical period in U S policy toward China concentrated on the question of relations with the new regime in Beijing A focus on those debates has largely overshadowed the concomitant policy debates that centered around the question of how to deal with the Nationalist regime on Taiwan As this study shows the two issues were inextricably linked and developing a Taiwan policy was no less difficult or controversial Heavily informed by an analysis of declassified U S government documents and other primary sources this history strongly suggests that had North Korea not invaded the south in June 1950 the U S would not have intervened to save Chiang Kai shek and Taiwan from near certain invasion Beyond the narrative itself this volume is also a case study into the complex and sometimes messy processes by which foreign policy is made It explores the tensions that existed within the Truman administration between the State Department and various newly created entities such as the Department of Defense the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the National Security Council Indeed the history of policymaking for China and Taiwan in 1949-50 is also a case study in the early development of the post war interagency system It also underscores the tensions between the Executive and Legislative branches in the development of foreign policy The study also brings to light little discussed and often uncomfortable issues in Taiwan history some of which still have relevance to politics on the island even today These include the legacies of the Japanese colonial experience the post war Nationalist occupation and the early stirrings of the Formosan independence movement to name just a couple Today U S policy toward Taiwan remains a highly charged and fundamentally divisive issue in U S China relations especially the security dimensions of that policy And even today U S Taiwan policy is still subject to partisan politics in Washington as well as in Taipei For those who still grapple with this issue this volume presents the roots of the dilemma and essential background reading America and the Cold War, 1941-1991 Norman A. Graebner, Richard Dean Burns, Joseph M. Siracusa, 2010-05-05 Three distinguished diplomatic historians offer an assessment of the Cold War in the realist tradition that focuses on balancing the objectives of foreign policy with the means of accomplishing them America and the Cold War 1941 1991 A Realist Interpretation is a sweeping historical account that focuses on the policy differences at the center of this conflict In its pages three preeminent authors offer an examination of contemporary criticism of the Cold War documenting the views of observers who appreciated that many policies of the period were not only dangerous but could not resolve the problems they contemplated The study offers a comprehensive chronicle of U S Soviet relations broadly conceived from World War II to the collapse of the Soviet Union It places the origins of the Cold War as related to the contentious issues of World War II and stresses the failure of Washington to understand or seriously seek settlement of those issues It points out how nuclear weaponry gradually assumed political stature and came to dominate high level Soviet American diplomatic activity at the same time discounting the notion that the Cold War was a global ideological confrontation for the future of civilization A concluding chapter draws lessons from the Cold War decades showing how they apply to dealing with nation states and terrorist groups today Pearson and Canada's Role in Nuclear Disarmament and Arms Control Negotiations, 1945-1957 Joseph Levitt, 1993-05-28 In Pearson and Canada's Role in Nuclear Disarmament and Arms Control Negotiations Joseph Levitt traces the history of these negotiations from the Canadian diplomatic perspective He analyses the various proposals and documents the reactions of Pearson and his colleagues Levitt reveals Pearson's own view of the strategic stalemate between the USSR and the United States Pearson did not believe that an open and liberal society such as the United States would ever launch an unprovoked offensive on the USSR he thought instead that the danger of a major military confrontation arose only from the possibility that the Soviet Union might attack Consequently the main thrust of Canadian diplomatic activity in these negotiations was not prevention of an American arms build up but support of a strategy which would compel the USSR to accept an agreement that would benefit the Americans militarily or failing that to hold the Soviets responsible for the impasse in the talks and thus win the all important propaganda war
