The Eye Of The Mind A Novel:

The Eye's Mind Karen Jacobs, 2018-09-05 The Eye's Mind significantly alters our understanding of modernist literature by showing how changing visual discourses techniques and technologies affected the novels of that period In readings that bring philosophies of vision into dialogue with photography and film as well as the methods of observation used by the social sciences Karen Jacobs identifies distinctly modernist kinds of observers and visual relationships This important reconception of modernism draws upon American British and French literary and extra literary materials from the period 1900 1955 These texts share a sense of crisis about vision's capacity for violence and its inability to deliver reliable knowledge Jacobs looks closely at the ways in which historical understandings of race and gender inflected visual relations in the modernist novel She shows how modernist writers increasingly aware of the body behind the neutral lens of the observer used diverse strategies to displace embodiment onto those others historically perceived as cultural bodies in order to reimagine for themselves or their characters a purified gaze The Eye's Mind addresses works by such high modernists as Vladimir Nabokov Virginia Woolf and more distantly Ralph Ellison and Maurice Blanchot as well as those by Henry James Zora Neale Hurston and Nathanael West which have been tentatively placed in the modernist canon although they forgo the full blown experimental techniques often seen as synonymous with literary modernism Jacobs reframes fundamental debates about modernist aesthetic practices by demonstrating how much those practices are indebted to the changing visual cultures of the twentieth century

The Victorian Mind's Eye Julia Thomas, 2025-01-12 The Victorian Mind's Eye Reading Literature in an Age of Illustration The Victorians lived in an age of illustration In a matter of decades words and images had become enmeshed and entangled printed alongside each other in a spectacular array of printed forms The exponential growth of illustration not only radically changed literature but also changed the way that literature was read This book offers a major conceptualisation of the difference that pictures made to the reading of words Analysing an extensive range of illustrated material and drawing on the accounts of Victorian readers reviewers authors artists and psychologists the book describes how the Victorians characterised the effects of illustration and how illustrations in turn elicited and anticipated responses from their readers What emerges from these sources is the notion of a distinct mode of reading that determined readers' material and mental engagements with illustrated literature The presence of images on the page was said to impact on whether readers created images in their mind as they read Illustrations generated feelings of pleasure or displeasure they determined what was read first what was recalled and what was etched in the memory By peering into the recesses of the mind's eye this book identifies the cognitive mechanisms and cultural politics that were central to how the Victorians described their reading of illustrated literature It suggests the significance of these ideas of reading for understanding the place of illustration in Victorian culture and the relation between words pictures and historical values and meanings Illustration was fundamental to how the Victorians read and to how we read the Victorians

Volz, 2017-03 Visuality in the Novels of Austen Radcliffe Edgeworth and Burney argues that the proliferation of visual codes metaphors and references to the gaze in women's novels published in Britain between 1778 and 1815 is more significant than scholars have previously acknowledged. The book's innovative survey of the oeuvres of four culturally representative women novelists of the period spanning the Anglo-French War and the Battle of Waterloo reveals the importance of visuality, the continuum linking visual and verbal communication. It provided women novelists with a methodology capable of circumventing the cultural strictures on female expression in a way that concealed resistance within the limits of language. In contexts dominated by frustrated utterance, penetrating gazes and the perpetual threat of misinterpretation, Jane Austen, Ann Radcliffe, Maria Edgeworth and Frances Burney used references to the visible and the invisible to comment on emotions, socio-economic conditions and patriarchal abuses. Visuality in the Novels of Austen, Radcliffe, Edgeworth and Burney offers new insights into verbal economy and the gender politics of the era by reassessing expression and perception from a uniquely telling point of view.
