The Gullibility Gap Derek Cooper, 1974      Rebooting AI Gary Marcus, Ernest Davis, 2020-08-25 Two leaders in the field offer a compelling analysis of the current state of the art and reveal the steps we must take to achieve a robust artificial intelligence that can make our lives better Finally a book that tells us what AI is what AI is not and what AI could become if only we are ambitious and creative enough Garry Kasparov former world chess champion and author of Deep Thinking Despite the hype surrounding AI creating an intelligence that rivals or exceeds human levels is far more complicated than we have been led to believe Professors Gary Marcus and Ernest Davis have spent their careers at the forefront of AI research and have witnessed some of the greatest milestones in the field but they argue that a computer beating a human in Jeopardy does not signal that we are on the doorstep of fully autonomous cars or superintelligent machines The achievements in the field thus far have occurred in closed systems with fixed sets of rules and these approaches are too narrow to achieve genuine intelligence The real world in contrast is wildly complex and open ended How can we bridge this gap What will the consequences be when we do Taking inspiration from the human mind Marcus and Davis explain what we need to advance AI to the next level and suggest that if we are wise along the way we won't need to worry about a future of machine overlords If we focus on endowing machines with common sense and deep understanding rather than simply focusing on statistical analysis and gathering ever larger collections of data we will be able to create an AI we can trust in our homes our cars and our doctors offices Rebooting AI provides a lucid clear eyed assessment of the current science and offers an inspiring vision of how a new generation of AI can make our lives better

Aesthetics of Fraudulence in Nineteenth-Century France Scott Carpenter, 2016-03-16 In his engagingly written and original book Scott Carpenter analyzes multiple manifestations of the false in nineteenth century France. Under Carpenter's thorough and systematic analysis fraudulence emerges as a cultural preoccupation in nineteenth century literature and society whether it be in the form of literary mystifications, the thematic portrayal of frauds, or the privileging of falseness as an aesthetic principle. Focusing particularly on the aesthetics of fraudulence in works by M. Rimé, Balzac, Baudelaire, Vidocq, Sand, and others, Carpenter places these literary representations within the context of other cultural phenomena such as caricature, political history, and ceremonial events. As he highlights the special relationship between literary fiction and fraudulence, Carpenter argues that falseness arises as an aesthetic preoccupation in post-revolutionary France where it introduces a blurring of limits between hitherto discrete categories. This transgression of boundaries challenges notions of authenticity and sincerity, categories that Romantic aesthetics championed at the beginning of the nineteenth century in France. Carpenter's study makes an important contribution to the cultural significance of mystification in nineteenth century France and furthers our understanding of French literature and cultural history.

The Victorian Freak Show Lillian Craton, 2009 The Victorian freak show was at once mainstream and subversive. Spectacles of strange, exotic, and titillating bodies drew large middle class audiences in England throughout much of the nineteenth century, and souvenir portraits of performing freaks even found their way into Victorian family albums. At the same time, the imagery and practices of the freak show shocked Victorian sensibilities and sparked controversy about both the boundaries of physical normalcy and morality in entertainment. Marketing tactics for the freak show often made use of common ideological assumptions: compulsory female domesticity and British imperial authority, for instance, but reflected these ideas with the surreal distortion of a fun house mirror. Not surprisingly, the popular fiction written for middle class Victorian readers also calls upon imagery of extreme physical difference and the odd-bodied characters that people nineteenth century fiction raise meaningful questions about the relationships between physical difference and the social expectations that shaped Victorian life. This book is primarily an aesthetic analysis of freak show imagery as it appears in Victorian popular fiction, including the works of Charles Dickens, Wilkie Collins, Guy de Maupassant, Florence Marryat, and Lewis Carroll. It argues that, in spite of a strong nineteenth century impulse to define and defend normalcy, images of radical physical difference are often framed in surprisingly positive ways in Victorian fiction. The dwarves, fat people, and bearded ladies who intrude on the more conventional imagery of Victorian novels serve to shift the meaning of those works' main plots and characters, sometimes sharpening satires of the nineteenth century treatment of the poor or disabled, sometimes offering
