The African Rises:

The African Rises Claude Beauregard, 2002-03-17 The African Rises is a fictional story drawing on past and present historic material. It takes a unique approach to examining how power is used by a minority to maintain their control over the vast resources of Africa in the post modern world. It does so using a modern interpretation of the trilogy of Ausar Aset and Heru, sometimes referred to as the Ausarian drama and the struggle for power between Ausar and his evil Brother Set in ancient Egypt. The African Rises expands on the trilogy and uses it as a base to tell the story of an African male living in the United States who returns to Africa seeking to unify the continent. The story details the challenges faced by this individual to achieve that goal and the attempts by foreign powers to stop him. The main character Sekhem must also deal with his own internal conflict and the great power he possesses on his own quest for spiritual freedom. The only question is will he complete his task in time and defeat a great and ancient evil that has also been watching his movements and waiting for a time to reveal its ultimate horror for humankind.

The Africa Rising Discourse Tracy Tinga, 2025-02-14 Over the last 25 years the Africa Rising discourse has been used to signify hope and promise for the continent marking a break from previous pessimistic portrayals. This book critically examines that discourse analyzing recurring themes tropes metaphors and imagery. It traces the evolution of the Africa Rising discourse and its connection with Afro pessimism providing valuable insights into how the continent is represented and understood. The book explores the tensions contradictions and impacts of labeling Africa as rising. Focusing on both local and global social actors as well as geopolitical influences it examines how these forces have shaped the discourse over time. Additionally it highlights how African actors have engaged with and modified the discourse. For instance the book assesses how in recent years digital media platforms have offered spaces for counternarratives that challenge stereotypical representations leading to a more nuanced and diverse understanding of Africa's rise. This book offers valuable insights for researchers in Media and Communication Studies Digital Media Journalism African Studies and Global Studies.

"Pan" Africa Rising Rita Kiki Edozie, 2017-09-08 This book uses Nigeria's Afri capitalist and South Africa's Ubuntu Business models as case studies that reconcile the tension between Africa Rising and Pan African economics presenting their convergence as Africa's viable Third Way route to global development. In presenting Afri capitalism and Ubuntu Business as national business sector manifestations of a new Pan Africanism the author explores Africa's culturalist path in engaging the international political economy. This is an African customized engagement that parallels the alternative models of China's market socialism and Latin America's 21st C Socialism. All present alternatives to realist liberal and structuralist standpoints inclining instead toward constructivist political economies derived from the perspectives and subject conditions of African economic histories socio cultures alternative modernities and agent led initiatives.

The Narrative of Africa Rising Darlington K. Esiaka, Jamaine Abidogun, 2024-06-13 Throughout time African civilizations have manoeuvred and negotiated successfully to maintain their societies and ensure cultural continuity despite encountering expanding trade foreign invasion and imposition of colonial and neocolonial states The Narrative of Africa Rising Changing Perspectives evaluates the discourse on Africa Rising through representative case studies to create a complex and layered account of Africa's struggles to rise above challenges and conflict in the twenty first century Using empirical data and field observations editors Darlington K Esiaka and Jamaine Abidogun measure Africa's complex and uneven development over time to provide insight into how Africans across the continent utilize indigenous socio political economic processes in the face of neocolonial nation state systems that routinely fail them Africa's twenty first century rise is erratic as it struggles to undo the damage of colonialism and to fight neocolonial exploitation but what stands the test of time are African civilizations sophisticated societal institutions that continue to vie for the wellbeing of their citizens Africa Rising Vijay Mahajan, 2011-07-07 With more than 900 million consumers the continent of Africa is one of the world's fastest growing markets In Africa Rising renowned global business consultant Vijay Mahajan reveals this remarkable marketplace as a continent with massive needs and surprising buying power Crossing thousands of miles across the continent he shares the lessons that Africa's businesses have learned about succeeding on the continent shows how global companies are succeeding despite Africa's unique political economic and resource challenges introduces local entrepreneurs and foreign investors who are building a remarkable spectrum of profitable and sustainable business opportunities even in the most challenging locations reveals how India and China are staking out huge positions throughout Africa and shows the power of the diaspora in driving investment and development Recognize that Africa is richer than you think Africa is richer than India on the basis of gross national income GNI per capita and a dozen African countries have a higher GNI per capita than China Aim for Africa Two Opportunities exist in all parts of the market particularly the 400 million people in the middle of the market Find opportunities to organize the market From retailing to cell phones to banking companies are succeeding by building infrastructure Develop strategies for the most youthful market in the world Companies are recognizing opportunities from diapers to music to medicine in a market growing younger every day Understand that Africa is not a media dark continent From Nollywood to satellite to broadband media is exploding on the continent Recognize the hidden strength of the African diaspora The African diaspora brings resources and knowledge to African development and expands the African opportunity beyond the continent Build Ubuntu markets Create profitable businesses sustainable growth and social organizations by meeting basic human needs Africa Rising? Ian Taylor, 2014 Africa is said to be rising turning a definitive page in its history heralding new and exciting possibilities for the continent This discourse maintains that with upsurge in economic growth comes improved governance and endogenous dynamics that the emerging economies and especially the BRICS Brazil Russia India China South Africa have been instrumental in diversifying Africa's international relations perhaps leading to a radical change in the global order favourable to the developing world But to what extent is this true and how deep and how broad has been the impact on society at large This book takes a critical look at the prevalent Africa Rising discourse and explores the nature and implications of Africa's rise and the role that the BRICS have played in it. The author argues that Africa has still to undergo any structural transformation that there is strong evidence that deindustrialisation and jobless growth have accompanied the upsurge of interest in the continent and that far from making a radical turn in its developmental trajectory Africa is being pushed into the resource corner as commodity exporters to the North and now the BRICS with little scope for industrial progress or skills advancement. Hope that the BRICS might offer an alternative to the extant neoliberal order are misplaced for the BRICS have a stake in maintaining the current global inequality. Africa must therefore fashion its own independent path while the emerging economies will be important, relying on external actors may simply reproduce anew the current state of underdevelopment. Ian Taylor is Professor in International Relations and African Politics, University of St Andrews; Chair Professor, Renmin University of China; Professor Extraordinary, University of Stellenbosch, South Africa; Honorary Professor, Institute of African Studies, Zhejiang Normal University, China; and a Visiting Scholar at Mbarara University of Science and Technology, Uganda.

Impacts of Africa RISING in Mali Haile, Beliyu, Azzarri, Carlo, Boukaka, Sedi-Anne, Tzintzun, Ivan, Vitellozzi, Sveva, 2024-06-24. This study evaluates the impact of Africa RISING, a sustainable intensification (SI) program implemented in Bougouni, Yanfolila, and Koutiala cercles in southern Mali, beginning in 2012. Using a participatory action research framework, the program validated and promoted alternative SI options including fertilized groundnut and sorghum crop legume intercropping, intercropping of two compatible legumes, access to extension services, and fertilizer microdosing while preserving ecosystem services in the face of projected population growth and climatic changes. Impact is estimated on several SI indicators and domains using two rounds of quasi-experimental panel data surveys conducted in 2014 and 2022 and difference-in-differences techniques. The unique study design allows us to estimate the impact of Africa RISING by comparing outcomes among program beneficiaries with two different counterfactual groups: one located inside program villages (within village comparison) and another in non-program control villages (out of village comparison) on several indicators across five SI domains: environment, productivity, economic, human, and social. We also conduct a placebo test comparing non-beneficiaries in the two counterfactual groups. We find few statistically significant differences in the averages of the characteristics in the environmental and productivity domain among households in the within village and out of village comparisons, most likely because of misreporting of program participation. Overall, comparisons between households in target and non-target villages show a positive impact of AR on environmental variables such as access to extension services and adoption of improved crops, on productivity variables such as green bean, cotton, and okra yield, and on economic variables such as an increase in the non-agricultural wealth index, but no statistically significant effect on human and social indicators, namely household dietary diversity, food consumption scores, and nutritional indicators for children 0-59 months old and women 15-49 years old. Estimates based on within village, out of village, and placebo comparisons suggest important insights about the challenges in assessing the impact of agricultural programs in general and specifically participatory multi intervention programs in the presence of sample self selection and spillovers Our study highlights useful empirical lessons learned to inform future program design and impact assessments Impacts of Africa RISING in Malawi Haile, Beliyou,Azzarri, Carlo,Boukaka, Sedi-Anne,Vitellozzi, Sveva,Chikowo, Regis,2023-12-04 This study evaluates the impact of Africa RISING a large scale sustainable intensification SI program that has been implemented in Central Malawi s Dedza and Ntcheu districts beginning in 2012 Using a participatory action research framework the program validated and promoted alternative SI options including fertilized maize maize legume intercropping intercropping of two compatible legumes cereal legume rotation and double row planting of legumes Impact is estimated on several SI indicators and domains using two rounds of panel data and difference in differences techniques The unique study design allowed us to estimate impact by comparing outcomes among program beneficiaries with two different counterfactual groups one located inside program villages within village comparison and another in non program control villages out of village comparison We also conduct a placebo test comparing non beneficiaries in the two counterfactual groups The within village comparison shows positive impact on several agricultural and economic indicators including access to agricultural information value of harvest on farm diversity labor productivity annual net household income per capita household consumption expenditure household wealth commercial orientation and household dietary diversity score We do not find a statistically significant impact on human indicators such as child and maternal nutrition Estimates based on within village out of village and placebo comparisons suggest important insights about the challenges in assessing the impact of agricultural programs in general and specifically participatory multi intervention programs in the presence of sample self selection and spillovers Our study highlights important lessons learned to inform future program design and impact assessments human and social We also conduct a placebo test comparing non beneficiaries in the two control groups Results from panel data analyses show improvements in several indicators in the environmental and productivity domains We also find a positive impact on use of conservation practices fallowing disc moldboard ploughing manure groundnut yield livestock net crop income and women s likelihood of becoming members of farmers groups relative to non beneficiaries We do not find a statistically significant effect on consumption and asset based poverty rates household dietary diversity and several indicators of maternal and child nutrition For both beneficiaries and non beneficiaries the share of monetary based non poor dietary diversity and food security have declined between baseline 2014 and follow up 2020 likely due COVID 19 Our study highlights useful empirical lessons learned for informing future program design and impact assessments
