The Facemaker And The Muse:

The Face-maker and the Muse Леонид Латынин, 1999 Larissa Miller's memoir recounts her childhood in postwar Moscow with reminiscences of her mother a major journalist under Stalin and of her father killed in World War II the discovery of her Jewish identity her first love and reflections on the nature of literature and art Her life has been closely connected with all the major events of the age which she relates with sober tenderness and insight Book Jacket Mothers and Masters in Contemporary Utopian and Dystopian Literature Mary Elizabeth Theis, 2009 Because advances made by science and technology far outstripped improvements in human nature utopian dreams of perfect societies in the twentieth century quickly metamorphosed into dystopian nightmares which undermined individual identity and threatened the integrity of the family Armed with technological and scientific tools totalizing social systems found in literature abolish the distinction between public and private life and thus penetrate and corrupt the very core of all utopian blueprints and visions the education of future generations At the heart of the family mothers as parents transmit their diverse cultural traditions while socializing their children and thus compete with ideologically driven systems that usurp their role as educators Mothers and Masters in Contemporary Utopian and Dystopian Literature focuses therefore on the thematic importance of this and other maternal roles for generic metamorphosis the shift to dystopia invariably is signaled by the inversion of traditional maternal roles The longevity of the utopian dystopian literary tradition and persistence of the maternal model of human relationships serve as points of reference in this post modern age of relative cultural values Meta utopian exploration of this thematic tension between utopia and dystopia reminds us that no place may not be home but we need to keep going there The Face-Maker and the Muse Leonid Latynin, 2015 The Last Years of Soviet Russian Literature Deming Brown, 1993 A comprehensive survey of developments in Russian literature over the last fifteen years of the Soviet regime Glas, 2003

consists in her ability to seize on the disparate details of everyday life and render them as a single perfect whole in which even the most unpalatable reality is made beautiful by the perfection of her art Ludmila Ulitskaya's Diana and End of the Story look at women who lie with verve just to escape dreary reality Permeated with a tolerant humorous warmth Ulitskaya's stories exemplify that strand in the humanist tradition that neither denounces nor deifies but attempts to understand human psychology in its infinitely numerous manifestations Svetlana Alexiyevich a Byelorussian dissident constructs powerful narrative collages out of live human voices culled from her interviews with witnesses to and participants in the most shattering national events She follows life rather than trying to invent it and she does so with great talent and keen vision Her Landscape of Loneliness shows how tragic social circumstances deprive people of the ability to experience and enjoy love Olga Slavnikova a prolific young author from Yekaterinburg depicts provincial life in a town where most of the men are involved in the illegal mining and cutting of precious stones Krylov's Childhood combines memorable characters with ethnographic detail Maria Arbatova a leading feminist famed for her frank outspoken and witty style is Russia's Erica Jong My Name is Woman takes place in an abortion clinic where the heroine reflects on her failed love affair and women's submissive role in love and life Nina Gorlanova sets Lake Joy in her native Siberian city of Perm in the small closed world of a maternity ward As a new life is born their suburb is being flooded and they are moved to new homes to start a new life Anastasia Gosteva takes the reader on an unusual journey around India and America Closing Down America The heroine's attempt to run away from herself and an unrequited love is in fact a desperate effort to come to terms with who she really is Margarita Sharapova draws on her unique personal experience as a circus animal tamer to describe the world of popular entertainment Brilliantly crafted inspired prose unputdownable Natalia Smirnova paints a disquieting picture of a provincial town in the Urals where two cultivated women must survive amidst crude working class surroundings The Women and the Shoemakers Her prose is deep and subtle but by no means female
