The Effect Of Divorce On Children Under The Age Of 18 Lorenzo N. Barr, 2023-03-14 Have you ever pondered upon the declining trust of humans in the institution of marriage There has been a high rate of single parenthood observed among the masses The changing norms and cultures changing concepts regarding parenting and the spiking graphs of divorce highlighted the alarming situation of declining institution of marriage The problem has been further invigorated by the declined institution of religion High divorce rates in the United States over the past twenty years have resulted in numerous changes in American family life with perhaps the most important consequences bearing on children whose families were disrupted In 1970 12 percent of American families with children under age eighteen were headed by single parents By 1984 one fourth of American families and nearly 60 percent of Black families were headed by single parents Millions of other children live in two parent but reconstituted families separated from at least one biological parent This pattern has led to the numerous consequences including drinking alcohol intake tobacco use and cannabis use to relax their minds than the ones from married families Every one of these factors expanded as the teenagers became older An important distinction was that the rates of alcohol consumption among children from both family types would in general meet over the long run whereas the level of tobacco and marijuana usage in young ones from divorced families remained considerably elevated than those from complete families It was also found that the perseverance of the negative psychological impacts of separation was especially higher for teenage ladies The book encapsulates the issue of collapsing institution of marriage and the increased divorce ratio in the society These facts will then be connected with the way these practices of divorce affect the children psychologically with special focus on those under eighteen years The book will be divided into chapters that will proceed step by step toward the conclusions The book shall also include the interview data of the individuals including the parents and children to determine how they have perceived and accepted this change that occurs with finalization of marriage Graphs and statistical evidences will be used The problem discussed in the book has been motivated by the declined institution of marriage due to a weakened religious institution The book is overflowing with the Christian ideas and beliefs of the fundamental aspect of biblical faith to anthropology The narrative in the book will extensively develop on the issue of collapsing institution of marriage and the increased divorce ratio in society The book questions the ethical social religious and political norms that have combined effect on the way rates of divorce are increasing and the way rates of declining trust has erupted among the people of God

Aristotle's Voice Jasper Neel, 2013-11-14 In this book Jasper Neel s sure to be controversial resituating of Aristotle centers around three questions that have been constants in his twenty two years of teaching experience What does it mean to teach writing What should one know before teaching writing And if there is such a thing as research in the teaching of writing what is it Believing that all composition teachers are situated politically and socially both as part of the institution in which they teach and as beings with lived histories Neel examines his own life and the life of composition studies as a discipline in the context of Aristotle Neel first situates the Rhetoric as a political document he then situates the Rhetoric in the Aristotelian system and describes how professional discourse came to know itself through Aristotle's way of studying the world finally he examines the operation of the Rhetoric inside itself before arguing the need to turn to Aristotle's notion of sophistry as a way of negating his system. By pointing out the connections among Aristotelian rhetoric, the contemporary university and the contemporary writing teacher, Neel shows that Aristotle's frightening social theories are as alive today as are Aristotelian notions of discourse. Neel explains that by their very nature teachers must speak with a professional voice. It is through showing how to hear one's professional voice that Neel explores the notion of professional discourse that originates with Aristotle. In maintaining that one must pay a high price in order to speak through Aristotle's theory or to assume the role of professional, he argues that no neutral ground exists either for pedagogy or for the analysis of pedagogy. Neel concludes this discussion by proposing that Aristotelian sophistry is both an antidote to Aristotelian racism, sexism and bigotry and a way of allowing Aristotelian categories of discourse to remain useful. Finally, as an Aristotelian teacher and a writer, Neel responds both to Aristotle and to professionalism by rethinking the influence of the past and reviving the voice of Aristotelian sophistry.

The Drug Effect Suzanne Fraser, David Moore, 2011-09-05. The Drug Effect: Health, Crime and Society offers new perspectives on critical debates in the field of alcohol and other drug use. In doing so, it addresses key questions of drug use and addiction through interdisciplinary, predominantly sociological and criminological perspectives, mapping and building on recent conceptual and empirical advances in the field. These include questions of materiality and agency, the social constitution of disease and neo-liberal subjectivity and responsibility. This book provides a fresh scholarly perspective on drug use and addiction by collecting top quality original work written by a mix of international leaders in the field and emerging scholars working at the cutting edge of research.

Educating Character Through the Arts Laura D'Olimpio, Panos Paris, Aidan P. Thompson, 2022-11-18. This volume investigates the role of the arts in character education. Bringing together insights from esteemed philosophers and educationalists, it looks to the arts for insight into human character and explores the arts' relationship to human flourishing and the development of the virtues. Focusing on the moral value of art and considering questions of whether there can be educational value in imaginative and non-narrative art, the nine chapters herein critically examine whether poetry, music, literature, films, television series, videogames and even gardening may improve our understanding of human character, sharpen our moral judgement, inculcate or refine certain skills required for virtue or perhaps cultivate certain virtues or vices themselves. Bringing together research on aesthetics, ethics, moral and character education, this book will appeal to students, researchers and academics of philosophy, arts and education, as well as philosophers of education, morality, aesthetics and teachers of the arts.
