Life Among Urban Planners Jennifer Mack,Michael Herzfeld,2020-06-26 A collection of ethnographic case studies of urban planners and their practices Urban planners project the future of cities As experts they draft visions of places and times that do not yet exist prescribing the tools to be used to achieve those visions Their choices can determine how a city will merge its public transit and automobile traffic or how it will meet a demand for thousands of new dwelling units as quickly and with as little avoidable damage as possible Life Among Urban Planners considers planning professionals in relation to the social contexts in which they operate the planning office the construction site and even in the confrontations with those affected by their work What roles do planners have in shaping the daily practices of urban life How do they employ manipulate and alter their expertise to meet the demands asked of them The essays in this volume emphasize planners cultural values and personal assumptions and critically examine what their persistent commitment to thinking about the future means for the ways in which people live in the present and preserve the past Life Among Urban Planners explores the practices and politics of professional city making in a wide selection of geographical areas spanning five continents Cases include but are not limited to Bangkok Bogot Chicago Naimey Rome Siem Reap Stockholm and Warsaw Examining the issues raised around questions of expertise participation and the tension between market and state forces contributors demonstrate how certain planning practices accentuate their specific relationship to a place while others are represented to a global audience as potentially universal solutions In presenting detailed and intimate portraits of the everyday lives of planners the volume offers key insights into how the city interacts with the world Contributors Margaret Crawford Ad le Esposito Trevor Goldsmith Mark

Tewdwr-Jones, 2014-07-09 Since the turn of the 21st century there has been a greater pace of reform to planning in Britain than at any other time As a public sector activity planning has also been impacted heavily by the wider changes in the way we are governed Yet whilst such reform has been extensively commented upon within academia few have empirically explored how these changes are manifesting themselves in planning practice This new book aims to understand how both specific planning and broader public sector reforms have been experienced and understood by chartered town planners working in local authorities across Great Britain After setting out the reform context successive chapters then map responses across the profession to the implementation of spatial planning to targets to public participation and to the idea of a customer focused planning and to attempts to change the culture of the planning Each chapter outlines the reaction by the profession to reforms promoted by successive central and devolved governments over the last decade before considering the broader issues of what this tells us about how modernisation is rolled out by frontline public servants This accessible book fills a gap in the market and makes ideal reading for students and researchers interested in the UK planning system The #Planninglife: A Magazine for Planners Jazzmyn Michaels, Against Urbanism Franco La Cecla, 2020-02-15 After demolishing the myth of the rock star architect with his book Against Architecture Franco La Cecla now explores the decisive challenges that cities are going to have to confront in the near future Urban planning and development has become increasingly inadequate in response to the daily realities of life in our cities Human economic ethnic and environmental factors are systematically overlooked in city planning and housing development and anachronistic sterile and formalistic architecture almost invariably prevails Meanwhile our cities grow out of internal impulses not only in slums and favelas but through the pressing needs for public spaces which have sprung forth in great events and movements such as Istanbul's Gezi Park and Occupy Wall Street Never more than today has democracy played itself out in public spaces sidewalks and streets Urban planners and developers however are still prisoners of an obsolete vision of passivity which betrays actual city needs and demands A new urban science is required which can first of all guarantee a civil dignified life for all urban development which ensures the right to a humane mode of daily living which has been and still is completely ignored Accustomed as we are to thinking that changes take place online or on a global scale we sense that they are not made of human bodies in urban spaces and that the mere presence in the square of people claiming their right to the city is a political fact explosive in nature Franco La Cecla from Against Urbanism
