Ward, 2012-06-01 This volume is a study of the structure of certain of James's works as well as a search for the structural principles that inform James's fiction and lie behind the technical dicta of his essays and prefaces It also develops the thesis that most of James's structures are determined by logical and spatial rather than chronological concepts of relationships Originally published in 1967 A UNC Press Enduring Edition UNC Press Enduring Editions use the latest in digital technology to make available again books from our distinguished backlist that were previously out of print These editions are published unaltered from the original and are presented in affordable paperback formats bringing readers both historical and cultural value

A Literary History of England Vol. 4 A. Baugh, Kemp Malone, 1959 Bachelors, Manhood, and the Novel, 1850-1925 Katherine V. Snyder, 1999-09-02 Katherine Snyder's study explores the significance of the bachelor narrator a prevalent but little recognised figure in premodernist and modernist fiction by male authors including Hawthorne James Conrad Ford and Fitzgerald Snyder demonstrates that bachelors functioned in cultural and literary discourse as threshold figures who by crossing the shifting permeable boundaries of bourgeois domesticity highlighted the limits of conventional masculinity The very marginality of the figure Snyder argues effects a critique of gendered norms of manhood while the symbolic function of marriage as a means of plot resolution is also made more complex by the presence of the single man Bachelor figures made moreover an ideal narrative device for male authors who themselves occupied vexed cultural positions By attending to the gendered identities and relations at issue in these narratives Snyder's study discloses the aesthetic and political underpinnings of the traditional canon of English and American male modernism

The Form of American Romance Edgar Dryden, 2019-12-01 Originally published in 1988 Edgar Dryden challenges recent criticism that has tended to discredit or at least devalue the importance of romance as a thematic and generic category of American fiction In The Form of American Romance he examines its evolution and meaning through readings of five exemplary texts Hawthorne's Marble Faun Melville's Pierre James's Portrait of a Lady Faulkner's Absalom Absalom and Barth's Letters Each of these novels treats the problems of reading and writing in a self-referential way that reflects on the questions they dramatize and Dryden has chosen each with the others in mind Taken together they chart a line of development with representative examples of what literary history calls romanticism realism modernism and postmodernism and thus they suggest a certain story about the continuity of the American novel

Critical Forms Ross Wilson, 2023-08-13 Critical Forms is an account of the generic forms in which literary criticism has been undertaken It examines chiefly Anglophone literary criticism with comparative discussion of French and German material from around 1750 to the present and examines prefaces selections and anthologies reviews lectures dialogues letters and life writing Though not intended to be an exhaustive history of the period Critical Forms begins in the mid eighteenth century with the emergence of something like the forms chiefly the essay and the treatise in which criticism is still predominantly practised In order at least to complicate this predominance the book documents an abiding plurality in the forms of literary critical writing in the subsequent period leading up to the present Ross Wilson both questions the status of the essay and treatise as the natural forms of literary criticism and shows that the history of literary criticism is much more formally various and innovative than the usual ways of recounting that history as a succession of schools and movements would allow Critical Forms harbours the hope that it will make available a wider array of forms for the practice of literary criticism today it is this hope that licenses its own experiments in critical form

Sisters in Time Susan Morgan, 1989-08-24 Asking why the 19th century British novel features heroines and how and why it features feminine heroism Susan Morgan traces the relationship between fictional depictions of gender and Victorian ideas of history and progress Morgan approaches gender in selected 19th century British novels as an imaginative category accessible to authors and characters of either sex Arguing that conventional definitions of heroism offer a fixed and history denying perspective on life the book traces a literary tradition that represents social progress as a process of feminization The capacities for flexibility mercy and self doubt conventionally devalued as feminine can make it possible for characters to enter history She shows that Austen and Scott offer revolutionary definitions of feminine heroism and the tradition is elaborated and transformed by Gaskell Eliot Meredith and James partly through one of his last heroines the aging hero of The Ambassadors Throughout the study Morgan considers how gender functions both in individual novels and more extensively as a means of tracing larger patterns and interests especially those concerned with the redemptive possibilities of a temporal and historical perspective

Marotti, 1993 Reading with a Difference is a collection of eighteen essays that examines how issues of gender race and cultural identity inform texts from the seventeenth century to the present Together the contributions document recent significant shifts occurring in the theoretical approach to the texts they study and illustrate how shifts in each of these categories affect how the others are viewed The first section of this anthology explores the notion that identity particularly gender identity is a cultural construct The essays in the second section consider ways in which race and gender intersect with cultural identity and how encounters between different cultures challenge any identity constructed in isolation First published in the journal Criticism these essays offer no blueprint for reading Instead they encourage a rereading of canonical texts and a questioning of how these texts face matters of gender race and cultural identity how they respond to the differences and the incongruities within the cultures from which they arise and to which they speak BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc All Rights Reserved The House, the World, and the Theatre Geraldo Magela Cáffaro, 2016-02-29 The House the World and the Theatre departs from three ideologically resonant spatial metaphors to explore key aspects of nineteenth century literature and culture At the centre of the discussion is the way authors fashioned themselves to cater to ever expanding audiences and to the new conditions of publishing The prefaces of Hawthorne Dickens and James illustrate the conflicts underlying the new forms of self definition in the nineteenth century and mediate the perception of authorship as a category that blurs the boundaries between social life and performance This book combines genre criticism new historicism literary history and
