Sartre Adrian van den Hoven, Adrian Mirvish, 2010-05-11 This volume deals with a number of topics that have not previously been specifically addressed before in a single text A chapter on Sartre and religion talks about his thought in relation to Christianity Judaism and Buddhism while one on Sartre and children discusses his work in relation to the issues of freedom pregnancy and autism Beyond this there are an additional seven chapters covering a wide variety of topics by leading scholars in the fields of philosophy literature psychology history and political thought While prior publications on Sartre have generally divided his work into two periods pre and post Marxist this volume deliberately stresses a middle and final period as well As representative of the middle period there is an emphasis on Notebooks for an Ethics while Sartre's last work Hope Now is also treated as being philosophically significant in its own right This approach helps to cast a new light on what Sartre has to say about authenticity childhood and consciousness as embodied among other subjects The volume also addresses many and diverse issues of current interest including those of freedom Marxism and Sartre's relation to ethics There are sections of the book that deal with history and the historical situations that helped to shape Sartre's thought as well as articles that deal with Sartre as a specifically French thinker A chapter deals with Sartre's relation to women and here the issues of maternity as problematic plus authentic adult relationships are discussed Finally in addition to authors in philosophy and literature there are articles by a child psychiatrist and a clinical psychologist to help to provide new insights

The Plot Machine Kai Mikkonen,2021-11-01 This book presents a new and exciting theory of the modern French novel by developing the notion of the narrative as a textual machine Many turn of the century French novels thematically identified their means of narration through the various machines that they depicted The narrative devices that were particularly important in this self reflection included the temporal order of the plot the question of a narrative s beginning and end the hierarchy of narrative voices and the techniques of the point of view The question of mechanization became central on all these fronts Has the novel become automated or machine like At the same time the machine metaphors in the novels of Alfred Jarry Emile Zola Jules Verne Villiers de l Isle Adam Raymond Roussel combined the question of the narrative form with new ways to think about man s relationship with technology and the cultural environment The early modernist texts drew upon contradictory notions of technological promise and threat while they also depicted new forms of identity and behavior related to or modeled after machines These texts highlighted cultural assumptions concerning technological innovations and critiqued mainly through parody and through various figures of man machine fusion the positivistic belief in progress Such writers looked for evidence of advanced forms of consciousness arising out of encounters with new technology such as telephones trains bicycles telegraphy phonographs and electricity This volume will be of interest to anyone working in the field of modern French literary and cultural history It will especially appeal to anyone intrigued with the origins of the modernist novel the history of narrative forms and the question of how the experience of new technology may be portrayed in literary texts
