The Age Of Drake An Eyewitness:

Elizabethan Sea-Dogs: A Chronicle of Drake and His Companions William Wood, 1921 Habsburg Peru Peter T. Bradley, David Patrick Cahill, 2000-01-01 The two case studies presented in this book represent two distinct types of imagining by two diametrically different groups literate and in some cases erudite Europeans and a vanquished native nobility The former endeavoured to make sense of Spain's and Portugal's marvellous possessions in the New World with the limited conceptual tools at their disposal the latter to construct a colonial identity based on their shared ancestral memory while incorporating elements from the even more wondrous Hispanic culture that had overwhelmed them There were of course multiple misunderstandings and misinterpretations Yet for the Spanish such distortions were a matter of government and religion rectifiable in the fullness of time whether by evangelisation or the relentless application of civil and canon law

English Musicians in the Age of Exploration Ian Woodfield, 1995 When Drake set sail from Plymouth harbour on 15 November 1577 at the start of his epic circumnavigation of the world he had with him on board the Pelican four professional musicians and at least one trumpeter from the Introduction The three epoch making voyages of Columbus 1492 Vasco da Gama 1497 and Magellan 1519 inaugurated the Age of Exploration the most intensive era of discovery in the history of the world This book seeks to ascertain what part musicians played in the patterns of settlement which still determine many of the cultural and linguistic boundaries of the present day world The focus is on Englishmen but account will be taken of musicians representing the other leading colonial nations of Europe France Spain Portugal and Holland This study deals with the hundreds of musicians who left their native country to serve on long distance ships in the years between the accession of Elizabeth I and the end of the 17th century Among the many subjects covered are musical duties at sea musicians as ambassadors on land musical trinkets for barter musicians of the East India Company musical instruments presented by the trading companies trumpeters drum and fife players amateur musicians musicians in the colonization of North America and much more The Yale Chronicles of America Series Allen Johnson, Gerhard Richard Lomer, Charles William Jeffreys, 1918

Elizabethan Sea-dogs William Wood, 1918 This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book without typos from the publisher Not indexed Not illustrated 1883 edition Excerpt CHAPTER XXXV In my youth and through the prime of manhood I never entered London without feelings of hope and pleasure It was to me the grand theatre of intellectual activity the field for every species of enterprise and exertion the metropolis of the world of business thought and action There I was sure to find friends and companions to hear the voice of encouragement and praise There society of the most refined sort offered daily its banquets to the mind and new objects of interest and ambition were constantly exciting attention either in politics literature or science THESE feelings so well described by a man of genius have probably been felt more or less by most young men who have within them any consciousness of talent or any of that enthusiasm that eager desire to have or to give sympathy which especially in youth characterises noble natures But after even one or two seasons in a great metropolis these feelings often change long before they are altered by age Granville Beauclerc had already persuaded himself that he now detested as much as he had at first been delighted with a London life From his metaphysical habits of mind and from the sensibility of his temper he had been too soon disgusted by that sort of general politeness which as he said takes up the time and place of real friendship and as for the intellectual pleasures they were he said too superficial for him and his notions of independence too were at this time quite incompatible with the conventional life of a great capital His present wish was to live all the year round in the country with the woman he loved and in the society of a few chosen friends Helen quite agreed with him in his taste for the country she had scarcely
