A Master of Science History Jed Z. Buchwald, 2012-01-05 New essays in science history ranging across the entire field and related in most instance to the works of Charles Gillispie one of the field's founders Marco Polo for Kids Janis Herbert, 2001-08-01 The Far East comes alive in this activity book centered on Marco Polo's journey to China from Venice along the 13th century Silk Road Kids will join Marco as he travels by caravan through vast deserts and over steep mountain ranges stopping in exotic cities and humble villages until at last he arrives at the palace of the Kublai Khan Woven throughout the tale are 21 activities that highlight the diverse cultures Marco encountered along the way Activities include making a mythical map creating a mosaic fun with Feng Shui making paper and putting on a wayang kulit shadow puppet play Just for fun kids will learn a few words of Turkish Persian Mongol Hindi and Chinese A complete resource section with magnificent museums and their Web sites invites kids to embark on their own expedition of discovery Writings on

American History, 1908 Forces of Nature Barry A. Vann, 2012-03-20 As long as the human species has existed men and women have had to contend with the unpredictable forces of nature Geographer Barry A Vann brings a unique perspective to this age old struggle in this illuminating overview of human population shifts and their precarious relationship with climate change and geography Vann takes us on a journey along the migration routes of the earliest modern humans and tells why our ancestors chose to settle down in places that can be best described as natural utopias In the religiously oriented worldview of ancient peoples such places took on a sacred aura of divine favor Similarly destructive events such as volcanic eruptions and earthquakes were interpreted as expressions of divine wrath Vann shows how the ancient texts of the Bible and the Qur'an offer glimpses of past climates that were distinctly different from the climate of our time He also discusses the rise of technology as a means of controlling the threatening features of the natural world Though technology has enabled humanity to cope with hostile climates it has also created a false sense of security Vann notes that population clusters are increasing in dangerous areas and that no technology can protect vulnerable groups from major category hurricanes tornadoes or earthquakes Finally he considers our current anxieties regarding global warming pointing out that this focus has obscured a good deal of historical and geological evidence for a return of another ice age The Forces of Nature offers a challenging perspective on the precarious balance between fragile human communities and their often threatening environments Reader's Guide to American History Peter J. Parish, 2013-06-17 There are so many books on so many aspects of the history of the United States offering such a wide variety of interpretations that students teachers scholars and librarians often need help and advice on how to find what they want The Reader's Guide to American History is designed to meet that need by adopting a new and constructive approach to the appreciation of this rich historiography Each of the 600 entries on topics in political social and economic history describes and evaluates some 6 to 12 books on the topic providing guidance to the reader on everything from broad surveys and interpretive works to specialized monographs The entries are devoted to events and individuals as well as broader themes and are written by a team of well over 200 contributors all scholars of American history

A Year of American Travel Jessie Benton Frémont, 1878 Jessie Benton Frémont 1824-1902 the daughter of a Missouri Senator and wife of explorer John Charles Frémont first came to California in 1849 when she and her young daughter spent six months at her husband's newly acquired ranch at Mariposas 140 miles east of San Francisco The Frémonts also spent the years 1851-1852 and 1857-1861 at the Mariposas ranch before moving to St. Louis during the Civil War They returned to California in 1887 and made Los Angeles their home for the rest of their lives A year of American travel 1878 was written by Mrs Frémont to earn badly needed money for her family after her husband went bankrupt in 1873 Here she describes her first trip to California in 1849 the voyage and crossing at Chagres life on the Mariposas ranch visits to San Jose and Monterey the life of women in California the plight of the Mission Indians the slavery controversy in the territory and the Monterey Constitutional Convention of 1849 The book closes with the Frémonts return to the East when Frémont assumed his seat in the U.S. Senate

Latino History Day by Day Caryn E. Neumann, Tammy S. Allen, 2013-05-09 This title takes a calendrical approach to illuminating the history of Latinos and life in the United States and adds more value than a simple this day in history through primary source excerpts and resources for further research Latino history has been relatively slow in gaining recognition despite the population's rich and varied history Engaging and informative Latino History Day by Day: A Reference Guide to Events will help address that oversight Much more than just a this day in history list the guide describes important events in Latino history augmenting many entries with a brief excerpt from a primary document All entries include two annotated books and websites as key resources for follow up The day to day reference is organized by the 365 days of the year with each day drawing from events that span several hundred years of Latino history from Mexican Americans to Puerto Ricans to Cuban Americans With this guide in hand teachers will be able to more easily incorporate Latino history into their classes Students will find the book an easy to use guide to the Latino past and an ideal starting place for research
