The Cultural Politics of the German Democratic Republic G. Ann Stamp Miller, 2004 This book deals with the intricate connection between the political structure of the East German government and cultural politics Specifically it focuses on the relationship between the government agencies and three authors It explores the difficulties the writers encountered in the 1960s with the government of East Germany and how their works did or did not conform to the cultural policy established by the GDR regime in 1951 The government believed that it was imperative for authors and artists to adhere to the literary policy of social realism prescribed by the East German Ministry of Culture An author s works were expected to conform to the political ideology of Marxism The Ministry of Culture expected writers to depict the society through the glorification of Marxism The East German cultural functionaries evaluated a piece of literature more for the author s devotion to the political doctrine than the aesthetic quality of the work If works did not conform the government agencies such as the Ministry of Culture could apply pressure to the authors in many forms censorship silencing fines prosecution surveillance and for extreme cases expatriation This study assesses three prominent writers of the former East Germany Wolf Biermann a lyricist Christa Wolf a novelist and Heiner M ller a dramatist The analysis is based on the political content of the authors works and how the West German and East German critics evaluated them Government documents from German State Archives revealed the sensitive nature of the political and writer conferences of the GDR The study analyzes how the writers interpretation of socialism increasingly deviated from that of the East German regime Over time the writers chose to express themselves in a different manner and thus encountered problems and conflicts with the Ministry of Culture
