range of issues in public professional media and intercultural communication the twelve original essays here tackle culturally pressing issues by aligning viewpoints from various geopolitical contexts This is a thought provoking book for scholars and researchers of language and communication studies who seek innovative approaches in their fields of interest Here is a book that takes diversity seriously and lifts it to the level of an epistemic paradigm What we know is culturally constituted and discursively articulated this relativism is converted into an absolutism due to historical power relations and we find ourselves a curious situation in which anything that suggests diversity at fundamental levels of thought becomes a serious theoretical problem This book addresses this absurdity and in the context of globalization the exercise is to be welcomed Jan Blommaert University of London This volume opens up new and innovative perspectives for all interested in discourse analysis cross cultural communication and social change It links and relates approaches which originate more in the West with those stemming from the East Thus a challenging debate is finally made possible which ultimately could and should lead to more collaborative research and even more importantly to better and mutual understanding Ruth Wodak Lancaster University This fine volume enters the large field of Discourse Studies by insisting that cultural knowledge of discourses is essential and thus necessary for our understanding of how discourse shapes human communities and relations among them It is a rich collection of conceptual and case studies a fine addition to our literatures and worthy of our careful study Donal Carbaugh University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Perceptions of Retailing in Early Modern England Nancy Cox, Karin Dannehl, 2017-05-15 Whilst there has been much recent scholarly work on retailing during the early modern period less is known about how people at the time perceived retailing both as onlookers artists and commentators and as participants Centred on the general theme of perceptions the authors address this gap in our knowledge by looking at a different aspect of consumption They focus on two ancillary themes the first is location and how contemporaries perceived the settlements in which there were shops the other is distance Pictures prints novels diaries and promotional literature of the tradespeople themselves provide much of the evidence Many of these sources are not new to historians but they have not been scrutinized and analysed with the questions in mind that are posed here The methodology to be employed has been developed by Nancy Cox over the last decade and is used successfully in her book The Complete Tradesman and in the compilation of the forthcoming Dictionary of Traded Goods and Commodities 1550-1800 This book will find a ready market with scholars concerned with British social and economic history in the early modern period Although it is first and foremost a book written by historians for historians it nevertheless borrows concepts and approaches from various disciplines concerned with theories of consumption material culture and representational art
