Social Construction Of Literacy:

The Social Construction of Literacy Jenny Cook-Gumperz, 2006-08-17 Literacy the ability to produce and interpret written text has long been viewed as the basis of all school achievement a measure of success that defines both an educated person and an educable one In this volume a team of leading experts raise questions central to the acquisition of literacy Why do children with similar classroom experiences show different levels of educational achievement And why do these differences in literacy and ultimately employability persist By looking critically at the western view of a literate person the authors present a perspective on literary acquisition viewing it as a socially constructed skill whereby children must acquire discourse strategies that are socially approved This extensively revised second edition contains an updated introduction and bibliography This volume will continue to have far reaching implications for educational theory and practice The Social Construction of Literacy Jenny Cook-Gumperz, 1995 The Social Construction of What? Ian Hacking, 2000-11-15 Lost in the raging debate over the validity of social construction is the question of what precisely is being constructed Facts gender quarks reality Ian Hacking's book explores an array of examples to reveal the deep issues underlying contentious accounts of reality especially regarding the status of the natural sciences The Social Construction of Meaning John Yandell, 2013-09-27 This book takes a fresh look at secondary urban English classrooms and at what happens when students and their teachers explore literature collaboratively By closely examining what happens in English lessons minute by minute it reveals how literary texts function not as a valorised heritage to be transmitted but as a resource for the students work of cultural production and contestation The reading that is undertaken in classrooms has tended to be construed as either a poor substitute or merely a preparation for other reading particularly for that paradigmatic literacy event the absorbed and simultaneously discriminating consumption of the literary text by the independent private reader This book argues for a different understanding of what constitutes reading an understanding that is informed by historical and ethnographic perspectives and by psychological and semiotic theory It presents the case for a conception of reading as an active collaborative process of meaning making and for a fully social model of learning Drawing extensively on data gathered through classroom observation and filming of English lessons taught over the course of a year by two teachers in a London secondary school the book explores students engagement with literary texts and the pedagogy that facilitates this engagement The book offers new insights into reading and reading literature in particular It challenges the paradigm of reading that is offered in government policy and the assumption common to much work within the field of new literacies that schooled literacy is the already known the default against which the alternative literacy practices of homes and communities can be defined It will be valuable reading for researchers teachers teacher educators and postgraduate students and will have particular appeal for those with an interest in the fields of English studies and literacy The Social Construction of Literacy in the Primary School Allan Luke, 1994 Primary teacher reference book which considers literacy in the primary school Defines literacy and the influence of educators decisions and outlines various community and cultural resources which shape what children bring to the classroom Also looks at how children perceive the possibilities and potentials of literacy and discusses the possibilities for teaching children a critical social literacy Includes a bibliography The Social Construction of Literacy Tami S. Sears,1987 Handbook of Constructionist Research James A. Holstein,Jaber F. Gubrium,2013-10-21 Constructionism has become one of the most popular research approaches in the social sciences But until now little attention has been given to the conceptual and methodological underpinnings of the constructionist stance and the remarkable diversity within the field This cutting edge handbook brings together a dazzling array of scholars to review the foundations of constructionist research how it is put into practice in multiple disciplines and where it may be headed in the future The volume critically examines the analytic frameworks strategies of inquiry and methodological choices that together form the mosaic of contemporary constructionism making it an authoritative reference for anyone interested in conducting research in a constructionist vein The Social Construction of Written Communication Bennetta A. Rafoth,Donald L. Rubin,1988 This volume examines the role of social factors in the nature and development of written communication Unlike previous works the volume is dedicated to examining the ways in which written communication affects and is affected by the community of writers and readers who produce and interpret written language It focuses on the extent to which writing depends upon principles of social context that are posited for language in general Intended for both researchers and teachers in language composition education and communication the volume draws together a number of distinguished scholars in linguistics communication education anthropology and sociology It offers theoretical and applied perspectives on aspects of written communication that share in the social foundations of language The Idea of Authorship in Copyright Lior Zemer,2017-03-02 As information flows become increasingly ubiquitous in our post digital environment the challenges to traditional concepts of intellectual property and the practices deriving from them are immense The romantic understanding of the lone author as an endless source of new creations has to face these challenges In order to do so this work presents a collectivist model of intellectual property rights The core argument is that since copyright works enjoy profit from significant public contribution they should not be privately owned but considered to be a joint enterprise made real by both the public and author It is argued that every copyright work depends on and is reflective of the author s exposure to externalities such as language culture and the various social events and processes that occur in the public domain therefore copyright works should not be regarded as exclusive private property The study takes its organizing principle from John Locke defining and proving the fatal flaw inherent in debates on copyright on the one hand the copyright community is eager to arm authors with a robust property right over their creation while on the other this community totally ignores the fact that the exposure of the individual to externalities is what makes him or her capable of creating material that is copyrightable Just as Locke was against the absolute authority of kings the expressed view of the study is against the exclusive right an author can claim

Social Construction of the Past George C. Bond, Angela Gilliam, 2020-04-23 First published in 1994 Anthropological and archaeological enquiry are shaped by the historical times in which they are formulated This collection of essays examines how mainstream scholarship constructs the past in the case of anthropologists usually the past of other peoples By creating another people s cultural history scholars appropriate it and turn it into a form of domination by one group over another Mainstream scholarship has often failed to recognize the intellectual and scholarly contribution of subjugated peoples This volume looks at the way postcolonial scholars are redefining the nature of scholarship and themselves in order to develop a more egalitarian discourse Social Constructions of the Past examines labour race and gender and its relationship to power and class It includes essays on a broad range of topics from the role of intellectuals in restructuring a non apartheid South Africa to Haitian working class women using sexuality to resist domination

Resnick, 2014-02-04 For decades research on children's literacy has been dominated by questions of how children learn to read Especially among Anglophone scholars cognitive and psycholinguistic research on reading has been the only approach to studying written language education Echoing this debates on methods of teaching children to read have long dominated the educational scene This book presents an alternative view In recent years writing has emerged as a central aspect of becoming literate Research in cognitive psychology has shown that writing is a highly complex activity involving a degree of planning unknown in everyday conversational uses of language At the same time developmental studies have revealed that when young children are asked to write they show a surprisingly sophisticated understanding of the representational constraints of alphabetic writing systems They show this understanding long before they can read conventional writing on their own The rich structure of meanings involved in the word text provided the glue that brought together a group of scholars from several disciplines in an international workshop held in Rome Reflecting the state of the field at the time the majority of the workshop participants were scholars working in languages other than English especially the romance languages Their work mirrors a linguistic and psychological research tradition that Anglophone scholars knew little of until recently This volume provides English language readers with updated versions of the papers presented at the meeting The topics discussed at the workshop are represented in the chapters as follows the relationship between acquisition of language and familiarity with written texts the reciprocal permeability between spoken and written language the initial phases of text construction by children and the educational conditions that facilitate written language acquisition and writing practice
