

Spring Silkworms

Summary:

Spring Silkworms depicts the plight of Chinese silkworm farmers in the face of imperialist incursion and a weakened rural economy. Old Tongbao and his family, who live in a village in Zhejiang province, go into debt to obtain a large quantity of mulberry leaves to ensure the healthy growth of their silkworms. When they finally have the best cocoon harvest in the village, cheap Japanese synthetic silks flood the Chinese market, driving down silk prices and putting Old Tongbao's family further in debt.

Analysis

Spring Silkworms made us realize that life is indeed hard ever since. Due to poverty, many people are being deprived to eat, to relax and to rest because if they want to have something on their table, they must work really hard for it. Just like the family of Old Tung Pao, they have sacrificed everything they have just to make sure that they would have something to provide for their necessities. But, little did they know, they have gambled everything that they have, into nothing.

In this life, we are all gamblers. In fact, life itself is a gamble. Sometimes, we don't even know that we are gambling for because gambling is not just about playing cards with money. It's not just all about the leisure or the fun. What I like the most in gambling is that it gives everyone the hope. The hope that they could win. For me, if you are hoping, you'll strive more. When you are hoping, you'll do wise and nice things. But how could you do that if gambling itself is a sin and can cause the destruction of everything that you have? Well, I have gambled a lot of times in this life. I have gambled literally for money. I have gambled for the sake of love and gambled for the sake of pride. Though I won in some instances, I also lose in some. Losing is part of life. When you do not lose you will not learn. Though, you should be ready for the consequences especially if you gambled without even thinking further.

In the story, it will make you realize that before doing something, you should think of the possible consequences because even the little decisions could affect not just your life but also the life of the people around you especially your loved ones. As a still growing person, I sometimes think that I am doing the right thing without thinking carefully. I still make impulsive decisions especially when it comes to business. I was scammed twice where I gambled every penny from my revenue and savings. This story made me realize that we need to think a million times about the decision that we will make — we need to be careful in every step we're taking unlike what Old Tung Pao did. He did not think further before risking everything that they have so in the end, they lost everything.
