Takezawa a Japanese national who has lived in the Japanese American community as well as in the larger American society has a distinctive vantage point from which to assess the changing meaning of being a Japanese American Takezawa focuses on the impact of two critical incidents in Japanese American history the wartime evacuation and internment of more than a hundred thousand individuals and the redress campaign that resulted in an official apology and reparation payments from the U S government Her book is a moving account filled with personal stories both painful and joyous told to her by Nisei and Sansei second and third generation interviewees in Seattle Covering the period before during and after World War II Takezawa captures the internal struggles of the Japanese American community in seeking redress She shows how its members have handled identity crises caused by racial discrimination evacuation and internment and the long prevalent American ideology of the melting pot She is particularly skillful in

Medicalizing Ethnicity Vilma Santiago-Irizarry, 2001 In Medicalizing Ethnicity Vilma Santiago Irizarry shows how commendable intentions can produce unintended consequences Santiago Irizarry conducted ethnographic fieldwork in three bilingual bicultural psychiatric programs for Latino patients at public mental health facilities in New York City The introduction of cultural sensitivity in mental health clinics she concludes led doctors to construct essentialized composite versions of Latino ethnicity in their drive to treat mental illness with sensitivity The author demonstrates that stressing Latino differences when dealing with patients resulted not in empowerment as intended but in the reassertion of Anglo American standards of behavior in the guise of psychiatric categories by which Latino culture was negatively defined For instance doctors routinely translated their patients beliefs in the Latino religious traditions of espiritismo and Santería into psychiatric terms thus treating these beliefs as pathologies Interpreting mental health care through the framework of culture and politics has potent effects on the understanding of normality toward which such care aspires At the core of Medicalizing Ethnicity is the very definition of multiculturalism used by a variety of institutional settings in an attempt to mandate equality

Leng Leng Thang, 2018-05-31 A dilemma long faced by western societies how to bring the generations together is also of growing concern in the east In Japan where until recently the extended family often lived under the same roof social programs designed to facilitate interaction between old and young have proliferated Leng Leng Thang offers an in depth view of one of those programs an unusual social welfare institution called Kotoen Kotoen is a pioneering facility for multigenerational living providing both daycare for preschoolers and a home for elderly residents With its twin mottoes of fureai being in touch and daikazoku large extended family it has been the subject of widespread media attention and has served as a model for other institutions Yet Kotoen has never before been studied seriously Under its director s inspiring leadership Kotoen looks unusually promising but Thang is wary of simplistic conclusions Her interviews research and work as a volunteer at Kotoen reveal the complaints common among some elderly residents toward their surroundings in old age institutions as well as the painful persistence of the traditional family ideal Yet far from calling the experiment a failure Thang challenges accepted wisdom and so called common sense to reveal the advantages and limitations of the relationships fostered between Kotoen s grandchildren and grandparents The lessons learned from Kotoen illuminate the urgency of re engaging the generations in an aging society and provide direction for improving the quality of life for all
