Microbial Degradation Processes in Radioactive Waste Repository and in Nuclear Fuel Storage Areas J.H. Wolfram, Robin D. Rogers, Lajos G. Gázsó, 1997-03-31 Purpose of the Workshop In the spirit of enhancing developments in science and technology by facilitating international scientific cooperation the Science Committee of NATO is sponsoring AR W s in several selected priority areas The objective of this workshop was to discuss what microbial mediated problems have been experienced in the area of nuclear waste management and spent fuel storage Long term storage of high level wastes in repositories is just starting in some countries However low and medium level wastes have been stored for several decades In the area of spent fuel interim storage has been extended at many locations far beyond the intended time It was a priority of the workshop to examine and discuss what deleterious effects have been observed under these storage conditions or under conditions used in simulated trial tests for predicting material performance under the storage conditions For example one chronic problem that was discussed was possibility that microbial influenced corrosion MIC could be taking place in the wet storage of spent fuel thereby initiating or accelerating the process of corrosion Another discussion in the area of waste forms focused on the presence of biofilms which may be breaking down the structure of the waste form and thereby jeopardizing its integrity The meeting focused on discussing the observations and data collected relating to problems encountered in the storage of these types of wastes and sharing this information with others that have not monitored their facilities for similar problems Radioactive Waste Management, 1981 Testing, Evaluation and Shallow Land Burial of Low and Medium Radioactive Waste Forms Wolfgang Krischer, 1984 Environmental Aspects of Stabilization and Solidification of Hazardous and Radioactive Wastes Pierre Côté, T.
