

The painting is a vertical composition. A thin, light-colored branch enters from the top left, curves downwards, and then extends horizontally across the middle. Two small birds are perched on this horizontal section. They are painted with dark ink for their heads, backs, and wings, and lighter ink for their chests. Their eyes are closed, giving them a serene expression. Several leaves are attached to the branch, some at the top left and others further down. The leaves are rendered with varying shades of ink, showing texture and depth. The background is a plain, light-colored paper.
