To investigate the process by which dysphoric persons are rejected by others, the authors integrated behavioral confirmation and interpersonal theories of depression. The expectations of nondysphoric perceiver participants (college students) were manipulated, such that half expected to interact with a same-sex dysphoric target and half expected to interact with a same-sex nondysphoric target. The targets' actual mood status was consistent or inconsistent with these expectations. Pre- and postinteraction impressions, as well as postinteraction acceptance of partners, were solicited from perceivers and targets ( $N = 240$ ). Audiotaped verbal behaviors were coded during the 1st and last 3 min of the interactions. Acceptance of targets and verbal behaviors were an interactive function of perceivers' expectancies and targets' mood status, such that dysphoric targets who were expected to be nondysphoric were the least accepted group and had the most dysfunctional interactions.

Dysphoric persons' interactions with strangers and intimates are often dysfunctional and frequently culminate in their rejection by interaction partners (Marcus & Nardone, 1992; Segrin & Dillard, 1992). In turn, such negative interactions may serve to maintain and exacerbate dysphoric persons' negative affect (Coyne, 1976b). Why are dysphoric persons frequently rejected by others? According to interpersonal theories of depression (e.g., Coyne, 1976b, 1990; Joiner, Alfano, & Metalsky, 1992; Lewinsohn, 1974), it is dysphoric individuals' symptom displays, excessive reassurance seeking, or poor social skills that annoy interaction partners and ultimately lead to their rejection by those partners. Alternatively, a behavioral confirmation perspective (e.g., Jussim, 1986, 1991; Rosenthal & Rubin, 1978) suggests that others' negative stereotypes of dysphoric people lead them to act in ways that produce stereotype-confirming behavior in the dysphoric individuals and eventually to others' rejection of the dysphoric individuals. In this study, we integrated these two perspectives and tested the idea that maladaptive interactions and rejection of dysphoric persons are due to the interaction of both partners' behavior rather than the behavior of either one alone.

Interpersonal Perspectives on Dysphoric–Other Interactions

Coyne's (1976b, 1990; Coyne, Burchill, & Siles, 1990) interpersonal theory of depression proposes that repeated symptom displays and reassurance seeking from mildly depressed or dysphoric individuals induce negative moods in others, resulting in increasing rejection from them. According to Coyne (1976b), dysphoric persons' initial signs of negative affect elicit expressions of concern and support from others. If the dysphoria persists, however, the responses of others become increasingly negative over time as their good will erodes, and they become annoyed and frustrated with the unremitting and aversive symptoms of the dysphoric individuals. When dysphoric persons detect contradictory messages from others, they engage in further reassurance seeking to clarify their status in relationships. Over time, the responses of others become overtly rejecting. Consequently, the dysphoric individuals' symptoms increase, and they become more socially isolated. Coyne's theory does not specify how the degree of closeness of the interactants and their expectations for future contact might affect the interactions, nor does it specify the length of time for the proposed pattern of initial support and subsequent rejection to unfold. Thus, it is not known how quickly dysphoric people alienate strangers or intimates.

Similar to Coyne (1976b), Lewinsohn (1974) argued that it is

Organizational Culture and Climate: New Perspectives and Challenges Thais Gonzalez

Torres, Vera Gelashvili, Giovanni Herrera-Enriquez, Juan-Gabriel Martinez-Navalon, 2024-02-08 Within the framework of organizational behavior and organizational psychology organizational climate and culture conceptualize how employees experience their work settings Thus organizational climate refers to the shared perceptions and meaning attributed to policies practices and procedures experienced by employees and the behaviors they observe that are rewarded supported and expected On the other hand organizational culture may be defined as the collection of values expectations and practices that guide and inform the actions of all team members Climate offers an approach to the tangibles on which managers can focus to generate the behaviors they require for effectiveness and culture offers the intangibles that likely accrue to produce the deeper psychology of people in a setting These two concepts complement each other and can be mutually useful in practice

Educational Change towards Problem Based Learning: An Organizational Perspective Huichun Li,2013-11-29 As a promising educational approach PBL Problem Based Learning has been adopted by an increasing number of higher education institutions worldwide to replace the traditional lectured based educational approach However the organizational change towards PBL is not easy for higher education institutions especially for those with a long history of Lecture Based Learning Therefore it is necessary to investigate the challenges and obstacles for higher education institutions which are implementing PBL In order to address the research concern this book involves in an intensive exploration of two universities which are transforming their traditional educational approaches to PBL Specifically this book is concerned with how managers staff members and students interpret PBL and its implementation It reveals that the challenges for implementing PBL are closely linked to organizational members conception of PBL social learning and motivation at the university The conclusions are specified as firstly the organizational members understanding of PBL and social learning are quite diverse and some of them are not consistent with the managerial attempts They may create huge tensions or chaos at the university depending on which strategy the managers have employed Further the organizational members understandings of PBL are more concerned with teaching and curriculum design rather than learning which should be highlighted within PBL context Besides staff members have to struggle between different roles due to the complexity of the university in modern society and some tasks such as researching will distract them from participating in teaching activities and thus undermine PBL implementation Finally the university has to make reflections on how to keep a balance between the use of normative approaches to guarantee organizational effectiveness and the intention of giving staff more freedom to make innovations and create new possibilities
